

ITALIANS DRIVE NAZIS FROM SARDINIA; FRENCH CONTROL CAPITAL OF CORSICA

Powerful Red Armies Closing On Smolensk

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(Monday) A powerful Red army offensive has cracked the gateway to Smolensk on the Napoleon road of retreat, smashing more than 30,000 Germans manning six lines of fortifications 30 miles northeast of that German central stronghold, Moscow announced early today.

Sweeping westward along a 700-mile front with gathering momentum the Red army also captured more than 1,100 towns, among them Krasnograd, Lubny, Pryatyn and Priluki—the last major Axis bastions short of the Ukraine capital of Kiev.

A spearhead was driven to within 24 miles of the lower Dnieper river, the bulletin said, as the Red army rolled on at a pace making it doubtful whether the German flight would halt at the Dnieper river.

A savage four-day fight that crushed "several German divisions" and resulted in the capture of 600 Germans and enormous stocks of enemy equipment topped Duhovschina and Yartsevo, on the approaches to Smolensk.

Marshal Joseph Stalin last night issued two orders of the day which announced the great central front and Ukraine victories. He ordered the usual salutes from Moscow's victory cannon to celebrate them.

The Russians were "giving the enemy no respite and are pursuing and smashing enemy units," said the midnight supplement to the daily communiqué. It disclosed that more than 6,000 Germans had been cut down in their westward flight during the day.

Scores of tanks and ammunition dumps and hundreds of guns and mortars were seized in the breakthrough on the central front, the bulletin said.

Surging back over battlefields followed by the brilliant 1941 Soviet defense that saved Moscow.

American 5th Army Continues To Expand Salerno Bridgehead

By NOLAND NORGARD.
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 19.—(AP)—German troops were fleeing from the Mediterranean island of Sardinia today under attack by two Italian divisions, and an Allied communiqué said their evacuation to Corsica was "almost completed."

The British radio said French patriots and Italian troops, combining in action against the Germans, also had seized control of Ajaccio, capital city of Corsica, but that German troops, reinforced by the Sardinia evacuation, had occupied Bastia, small Corsican seaport and railway terminal on the northeast coast.

The American Fifth Army continued its steady expansion of the Salerno bridgehead in the heightening battle for Italy, capturing the mountain village of Altavilla, 10 miles inland, and seizing the near-by town of Battipaglia, once an important Axis air base.

Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's forces made other penetrations into enemy positions at unspecified points and patrols pushed out further beyond the German lines. German lines had been reported earlier to be thinning out.

The German high command communiqué announced that Nazi troops in southern Italy "have detached themselves from the enemy in accordance with plans and have taken up a shorter line of resistance"—in other words, retreated. An official Allied announcement disclosed for the first time that Marshal Badoglio, who took over the government of Italy when Benito Mussolini was ousted, is now in Allied-held Italian territory.

The new premier has been on the Allied side of the battle lines since the Germans occupied strategic points in and around Rome the day after his armistice proclamation.

War Summary

By The Associated Press.

ITALY: Italians drive erstwhile German comrades in arms from island of Sardinia; U. S. Fifth Army expands Salerno wedge, captures two more towns; British radio reports French patriots and Italian troops seize control of Ajaccio, capital of Corsica.

RUSSIA: Stalin's order of day discloses drive opened on Smolensk with powerful Red armies smashing German resistance at Yartsevo and Duhovschina; Soviet armies of Ukraine smash last German stronghold before Ukrainian capital of Kiev.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC: Strong U. S. naval force attacks Tarawa island, in Jap-held Gilbert group, Saturday night and Sunday; nature of attacks not disclosed, but presumed by carrier-based torpedo and dive-bombing planes.

WESTERN EUROPE: Newest sustained aerial offensive moves through fifth straight day; U. S. Marauders blast German-held Lille, France, in daylight; strong fighter-escorted bomber fleets roar out into night for unannounced destination; RAF Mosquito fleet attacks unannounced city in industrial Rhineland.

SKIES SWEEP CLEAR. Bombers and fighters of the Allies' Northwest African Air Forces, operating in skies swept clear of enemy opposition, lashed out once more at German air bases in the vicinity of Rome in a continuation of aerial attacks similar to those on the Naples-Salerno area before Allied assault troops landed there.

General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth Army advanced at a rapid pace. His column pushing up the coastal highway already had joined with the Fifth Army at the southern edge of the Salerno bridgehead near Agropoli, and official reports did not say how far the swift thrust had carried into the mountainous interior where enemy troops and motor convoys were fleeing toward the north.

The daily communiqué from General Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters also failed to indicate whether any Allied troops had landed yet on the island of Sardinia, which was surrendered officially to the Allies along with the Italian mainland September 8.

The German garrison on the island was believed to have been too small to offer any substantial resistance to the attacks from two divisions of the Italian army and from Allied aircraft which swept Sardinia constantly in recent weeks without encountering more than an occasional Cherished Goal.

At any rate, the German flight across the seven and a half mile wide Strait of Bonifacio to Corsica paved the way for an easy Allied occupation of Sardinia, which long has been a cherished goal.

It appeared unlikely that the Germans could expect any more cordial treatment in Corsica, former French island, which Italian forces occupied after the fall of France, than they received at the hands of the embattled Italian troops in Sardinia.

The residents of Corsica, whether of French or Italian blood, displayed an active dislike for German domination long before the Allied landings in North Africa brought the first promise of deliverance. Disorders are reported to have increased greatly since Italy's surrender.

Sardinia possesses 10 air fields which the Axis used for military purposes, three of which are in the north end of the island at Olbia, Chivivani and Attana.

Although hardly as well situated for basing heavy strategic bombers as the recently captured airfields in southern Italy, they would be valuable bases for operations against northern Italy.

SAFE WITH ALLIES—Italian Marshal Badoglio and members of his staff, two of whom are shown with him here, last night were reported to be with Allied officers in southern Italy where they are expected to co-operate with the forces of democracy as they move northward against the German enemy. This scene from an Italian newsreel released in Nazi-held Rome reached Atlanta through neutral sources.

Hamburg Damage Tops Coventry by 100 Times

$50,000 Fire Razes 9 Square Miles Or 77 Per Cent Of City Ruined

By HENRY B. JAMESON.
LONDON, Sept. 20.—(Monday)

(P)—Seventy-seven per cent of sprawling Hamburg, formerly Germany's second largest city and chief port, lies in ruins as a grim and smouldering example of what is in store for Berlin and other cities when Allied air power cuts loose in its full and awful fury.

The full story of the unprecedented devastation produced in the one-time industrial center by four RAF and two American Flying Fortress raids between July 24 and August 2 at a cost of 87 bombers was disclosed by an RAF commentator today after weeks of study of photographs and intelligence reports.

They show the once-flourishing city of 1,800,000 population has, for the time being at least, almost ceased to exist.

Nine Square Miles. Altogether, between 5,000 and 6,000 acres—about nine square miles—were devastated.

That is nearly 100 times Coventry's similarly damaged area, and nearly 60 times greater than the principal area of devastation in London (105 acres) at the peak of the German aerial attack to knock Britain from the war in 1940.

The "built up" area of Hamburg which was destroyed includes the city proper and its suburbs.

The RAF dropped approximately 7,000 long tons (7,840 U. S. tons) of bombs on Hamburg, but the additional tonnage dumped by the Fortresses has not been revealed.

In their biggest raid on Coventry 400 German planes dropped 450 tons in nine hours—a rate of almost a ton per minute.

In the last big raid on Hamburg, the RAF dropped 2,350 long tons in 45 minutes—a rate of more than 50 tons per minute, or more than 50 times the intensity of the largest Coventry raid.

Everything Destroyed. The Hamburg photographs reveal an almost uniform expanse of gutted buildings. Fire swept through street after street for miles, particularly in commercial and port areas, destroying everything.

The official damage list, which unscrupulously includes hospitals, churches and other institutions which could not escape the holocaust, includes as "almost entirely destroyed" eight shipbuilding yards, three oil works, six non-ferrous metal works, 20 armament and steel works, 11 chemical works, eight textile plants, 21 foodstuff plants, 31 miscellaneous factories, 16 gas and electric plants, 14 administrative buildings of a large army camp, 419 warehouses, the city's main railroad station and five suburban stations.

13,000 Vessels Sent to Navy In 3-Year Span

By HAMILTON W. FABON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP) A giant fleet, "mightiest in world history," carries the United States flag today on all oceans and seas.

And, in the skies, is "the most powerful naval air force in the world."

The Navy proudly gave the descriptions today in an inventory disclosing gigantic production of ships, planes, ammunition—production that still is adding swiftly to the "greatest sea-air power on earth."

On the seas, the Navy observed, the fleet is composed of 14,072 vessels including 613 warships. Three years ago there were only 1,076 vessels, numbering but 383 fighting ships.

The Navy air forces have more than 18,000 planes—dive-bombers, torpedo bombers, fighters, patrol ships, planes of all types. Three years ago there were 1,744 naval planes of all types.

Speed of the production that has built up the fleet and air arm is portrayed in these comparative figures:

"In July, 1940, the Navy received five newly completed vessels; in July, 1943, almost 1,200."

"In July, 1940, the Navy re-

Governors Disperse; Rail Lobby Uneasy

By LAMAR G. BALL.
Constitution Staff Writer

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 19.—Governors of 21 southern and western states scattered to their homes today with opinions divided on the results of their first conference except for one point—virtually all agreed that this discussion of the common interests of the south and the west will lead to better understandings and a stronger spirit of co-operation in the future.

The west's 12 governors—eight of whom are Republicans—arrived here determined to swing the actions of the conference into an all-out denunciation of New Deal policies.

The south's nine governors came to discuss only one thing—revision by the Interstate Commerce Commission of freight rates that are unfair to the south and to most of the states of the west.

The railroads had observers here in swarms, all of them led by William Jefferson, president of the Union Pacific railroad and a man who has built himself into heroic proportions in the west because of the work he has done on his job as rubber czar of the nation this past year.

The railroads are worried over the south's fight.

Governor Arnall, of Georgia, said today:

"It is quite apparent that the misunderstanding of the south's aims by the west has been brought about by the entrenched railroads in the west—powerful interests that are dominated by eastern capital."

"I believe we have made some progress as a result of this conference. Some of the western governors expressed willingness to join us in our fight. Others were frank in expressing themselves as not at all desirous to interfere with tariff barriers erected by the railroads."

"Sooner or later, the people of the west will conclude that they must have a well-balanced program and that program must have the foundations of industry and agriculture to assure its economic well-being."

"It took the south many, many

Torpedo Planes Believed Factor Over Gilberts

By LEIF ERICSON.

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Japanese airbase on Tarawa island in the northern Gilbert group and Nauru island, west of the Gilberts, were attacked by strong American naval forces last night and today (east longitude time), Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced.

The form of assault on the enemy's island bases was not specified in the admiral's communiqué, but they probably were heavily bombed by carrier-based torpedo planes and dive bombers.

The attacks on the islands, which form the eastern spearhead of Japan's Pacific defense perimeter, came less than three weeks after the September 1 bombing of Marcus island, 1,200 miles from Tokyo.

In the Marcus island raid American planes blasted the base for nine hours, smashing 80 per cent of the Japanese installations there, Admiral Nimitz reported later.

Admiral Nimitz' communique today:

"Strong Pacific ocean area forces today conducted a heavy raid on the Japanese bases on Tarawa island in the northern Gilbert group and on Nauru island to the west of the Gilbert group."

"These operations were carried out according to plan during the night preceding and for a good portion of the day of September 19, east longitude time."

"Details of the operation are

Lae Fall Opens New Phase of Pacific Battle

By C. YATES McDANIEL.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The hoisting of the Australian flag over Lae, New Guinea, last Thursday, just four days after the Allied occupation of Salamaua, to the south, marked the completion of the preparatory phase of General Douglas MacArthur's strategy of reconquest.

It also presaged the beginning of the far more formidable task of rolling up the eastern flank of the powerfully fortified barrier buttressing the approaches to the Japanese empire and southeast Asia.

The victory on the northeast coast of New Guinea, gained by the Australians with continuous hard-hitting support by Australian and American airmen and, at decisive junctures, by American amphibious forces, also marked the first Japanese failure to defend to the last man the enemy's long-held position in the southwest Pacific.

Arc of Bases Completed.
The victory at Lae gives the Allies possession of the adjacent Malahang airfield. This completes an arc of air bases running through Kiriwina and Woodlark islands, off the southeast New Guinea coast, eastward to Munda, in the Solomon Islands. From one or another of them Allied fighter planes can reach every major Japanese base from Wewak, New Guinea, to Rabaul, New Britain, as well as in the northern Solomons.

The strategem which enabled numerically superior air and sea-borne Australians to envelop and reduce the Lae stronghold in 12 days was actually the decisive fruition of an Allied plan which in seven months drew battalions after battalions from the enemy's Lae garrison to be successively cut off and destroyed south of Salamaua.

Time and again during the seven-month period the Allied command noted that the Japanese steadily were strengthening and reinforcing their rear bases in New Guinea and New Britain, from which support might be sent Lae.

The enemy's last major attempt to run sea-borne assistance to Lae met defeat in March, when a 22-ship convoy was sunk by Allied planes. Subsequent efforts to send help to northeastern New Guinea by barges were foiled by Allied airmen, who destroyed hundreds of these small craft.

Japs Isolated.
Isolated from supporting bases, the remnants of the Japanese garrison offered no resistance to the final assault at Salamaua, and their guns hurled only brief and ineffective defiance to Australians moving on Lae.

MacArthur's communique today acknowledged the enemy's realization of the Allied threat to the Rabaul anchor by taking note that the Japanese are reinforcing their already formidable air strength in the northern Solomons.

How long and how costly will be the task of rolling up the enemy's eastern flank will depend upon how soon and how effectively the Allied air power operating from the newly advanced bases can gain aerial domination.

It also will depend upon how daringly the still formidable Japanese navy will attempt to challenge Allied fleets, especially if the Allies receive the promised reinforcements which were made possible by the surrender of the Italian navy in the Mediterranean.

Ignore Foe's Reports on War Captives

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The American Red Cross says shortwave broadcasts from enemy nations purporting to give information about American prisoners of war should be ignored.

Announcing that "hundreds of service men's families" have received false casualty reports, the Red Cross said today that the Bureau of Investigation today is stating that the spreading of such reports indicates a substantial force of enemy representatives strategically placed throughout the country, working under enemy orders to undermine American morale.

Heart Attack Fatal To Miss Blackwell

Miss Daisy Lee Blackwell, of 1055 Piedmont avenue, N. E., a nurse, died suddenly Saturday night in the downtown district. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at the Sacred Heart church. Father M. A. Collins will officiate. Burial will be in West View cemetery. Rosary services will be said at 8 p. m. today at Spring Hill.

According to a police report of Radio Patrolmen Al King and H. C. Young, Miss Blackwell apparently was stricken with a heart attack while standing at Peachtree and Baker streets.

A doctor summoned from Grady hospital pronounced her dead. Middle-aged, the woman was identified by papers in her purse. She was a member of the Catholic church. An official of the church helped establish identification.

Parachuting Dog (Max) Is AWOL

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—(INS)—Max, the boxer dog mascot of an American paratrooper division now with the Seventh Army, is missing and his master wants no stone left unturned in finding him.

Max, that gained fame by making parachute jumps with American paratroopers training in Georgia, has wandered away from the camp, according to a letter received today by the wife of Max's owner, Major James Gray, some where overseas with the Seventh Army.

"Please make every effort to find him," the major pleaded in a letter to his wife in San Francisco. "Max is a human dog. He's got to be found."

Max is now AWOL for the second time, Mrs. Gray disclosed. He was to have accompanied his own paratrooper division to Africa but he missed the general's plane by an hour and had to remain behind.

Major Gray was advised that Max had disappeared from Camp Mackall by fellow officers at the North Carolina Army camp.

Mrs. Gray said she would request camp authorities to investigate the circumstances of Max's disappearance or to institute a search for him.

Japanese Lose 14 More Planes Over Solomons

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Monday, Sept. 20.—(AP)—American warplanes have destroyed 14 more enemy aircraft in renewed raids on Japanese bases in the northern Solomons Islands, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The attack was centered on airfields in the Buin area at the southern tip of Bougainville island. The wrecked planes were identified as fighters.

This new success was scored in the course of a trip to the base of the Japanese-held Kahili and Ballale airfields.

Both have been repeated targets for American bombers of all categories, and Ballale has been described as a "hotbed" of Japanese fighters.

60 Interceptors.
Sixty interceptors from the enemy's growing fighter fleet in the northern Solomons area rose to challenge the bombers in their three-pronged attack, a headquarters communique said. It was from among these that the bombers and their fighter escort bagged today's score of enemy aircraft.

Allied airpower also was felt in the New Guinea area to the west. Bombers of the Fifth Air Force dumped 16 tons of explosives on Finschhafen, one of Japan's last remaining bases on the Huon Gulf.

In an air patrol off the coast of New Britain, two Japanese barges laden with troops were destroyed. The Allied base at Darwin, Australia, was raided by the enemy, but the communique said no damage resulted.

A small enemy cargo ship was bombed and set afire by an Allied reconnaissance plane east of Kavieng, New Ireland, and other heavy bombers damaged a 2,000-ton Japanese merchantman off Cape St. George in the same general sector.

3d Freighter Sunk.
At Hansa Bay on the north coast of New Guinea between Wewak and Madang, a third enemy cargo vessel of 1,500 tons fell victim to a night attack by a single medium bomber. The ship was destroyed, the communique said.

Heavy and medium bombers and attack planes joined in the assault on the Finschhafen targets, bombing installations and troop centers at Geldsbach, Finschhafen and the Tami islands, and following up with numerous machinegun attacks from low altitude.

Another New Guinea objective was the enemy-held village of Kaiapit, where bivouacs were strafed by Allied fighter planes and a considerable number of huts was destroyed.

Small shipping and shore structures on Kimba bay, New Britain, and on Rooke and Ritter islands in Vitiaz strait north west of Finschhafen came under the guns of Allied long-range fighters.

Dili, on enemy-held Portuguese Timor, was subjected to a night attack by Australian-based bombers.

Georgia Is Represented In Cotton-Picking Contest

Burma Campaign Is Expected To Influence Vast Pacific Area

By ELTON C. FAY,
Associated Press War Analyst.

The Allies in the Asiatic war are not forgetting the Japanese now lurking virtually undisturbed in their Malaya and East Indies strongholds.

The impending Burma campaign, although in a theater far removed, may have a direct influence on the area stretching west from the New Guinea-Solomons front to the Indian ocean.

President Roosevelt says "we are determined to take the offensive" in Burma. He put that declaration into the same message in which he noted there had been "one serious gap in the lines of our globe-encircling sea power," the 3,000-mile interval between Ceylon, in the Indian ocean, and northwest Australia.

That gap, he said, now can be closed because naval strength once needed in the Mediterranean can be diverted.

Sumatra and Java flank that gap in Allied sea strength, and north of them are Singapore and Borneo. But because they do flank the gap which is now to be closed does not necessarily mean that the islands themselves can be retaken by amphibious operations carried over and launched from the sea route.

The enemy has been there, presumably is well entrenched, and operation from the sea against his guns and shore-based aviation could be difficult and costly. It would even be unsuccessful.

But Burma is at the Japanese overland route to Malaya and the Indies. It is within reach of seaborne invasion forces from Ceylon and India and, from the north, is threatened by land armies growing in strength at the India border.

With Burma and Indo-China, or an east-west cross section of the two countries, in Allied control, the enemy's land route to his positions in the lower Malayan peninsula and the Indies would be cut. And what is more, his sea route would be brought within easy bomber range. Allied forces would be in position for a war of attrition or for a full-scale flanking move to the south.

To the east, the jaws of the pincer close steadily. General MacArthur's air, sea and land forces progress along the enemy's southwest Pacific flank, advancing westward and north.

With Burma in Allied hands, China would receive the huge stocks of war goods for which she now starves. The rate of progress in the whole Pacific war would be accelerated.

Allied four-engine bombers now stand on Chinese airfields, many of them grounded because the

Rains Wane, Yanks Smash At Burma
NEW DELHI, Sept. 19.—(AP)—American and RAF bombers and fighter planes, stabbing through breaks in the waning monsoon, concentrated their attacks on Japanese barracks and transport lines in occupied Burma during the week, it was announced in communiques today.

American B-25 bombers loosed their loads on the Bogyung gorge last Wednesday, causing landslides which covered a great section of the railway line extending along the bottom of the cut. Other railway targets were attacked at Naba junction the same day.

Targets east and west of Mandalay were attacked Thursday, as were Japanese barracks at Maymye. Other attacks were made on rail lines and rolling stock at Ywataung and Saging to round out a week without losses to the Americans.

RAF Beaufighters shot up enemy barracks, locomotives, trucks, 20 sampans and attacked a Japanese concentration in the Prome area yesterday, a British announcement said.

WINNERS—Gladys Merck and Bobby Bracewell were winners in the Fulton county spelling contest.

Girls' High Speller Wins County Title

Gladys Merck, daughter of Mrs. Beatrice Merck, of 1701 Moxley drive, S. W., and representing Girls High school, won the Fulton county spelling championship conducted Friday afternoon at Fulton High school by Knox Walker, supervisor of the Fulton county system.

She will represent the county at the state contest to be held at the Southeastern Fair at Lakewood in October.

Bobby Bracewell, of Boys' High, son of J. R. Bracewell, of 678 Moreland avenue, N. E., won second place.

Sixteen champions from city and county schools took part in the contest.

Gladys was tied at the end of the first contest with Bobby, but spelled him down on the second lap. Third best speller was Patricia Shannon, representing Joe Brown Junior High school.

Heroic Georgia Flying Tiger Is Cited, Then Dies

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Colonel Richard Aldworth, 46, recruiter of the Flying Tigers and a pioneer of the air corps, died at Kelly Field hospital late last night, one day after he was awarded the Legion of Merit medal.

Major General Gerald C. Brant, of the Central Flying Training Command at Randolph Field, presented the Legion of Merit medal to a representative of General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the air corps.

Colonel Aldworth, a native of Augusta, Ga., was largely responsible for recruiting the famed American Volunteer Group, which blazed a remarkable record in China skies.

The sandy-haired aviator succumbed from injuries received in one of his four former plane crashes.

In May, 1921, he achieved a record that was to stand until the present conflict. During a test of aerial bombardment, he sank a captive German destroyer when one of his bombs dropped through the funnel of the ship.

Following a series of Army assignments, he was stationed at Langley Field, Va. On December 12, 1926, while flying a pursuit ship from Mitchel Field, N. Y., to Langley Field, his motor failed and he was forced to swerve his plane into the sea to avoid hitting a group of people on the beach at Rockaway, N. Y. The feat won for him the Distinguished Flying Cross, but not until 10 years had elapsed. The delay was caused by his failure to report that he had chanced his own life to avoid hitting the bathers.

SHIP HONORS ACTOR. WILMINGTON, Cal., Sept. 19.—(AP)—California Shipbuilding Corp. today launched a 10,500-ton Liberty ship named for the late Edward H. Southern, famed Shakespearean actor.

He was accompanied by Mrs. Churchill and his daughter, Subaltern Mary Churchill, as well as his minister of information, Brendan Bracken.

The prime minister returned to face a series of questions from a critical parliament.

It was considered likely he would reply to those who have been asking questions about the lull between the time of the overthrow of Benito Mussolini and the invasion of the mainland; why the attack was not made farther up the peninsula and why Hitler could come to the rescue of Mussolini before the Allies had laid hands on the former Italian dictator.

Ready Reply.

In the words of one commentator, Churchill had a ready-made answer to at least some of these questions.

"None could be more effective than to say that Generals Eisenhower, Alexander and Montgomery, acting in conjunction with their chiefs of staff, were the best judges of what could be done, just as they must be left to decide the venue, scale and form of the next offensive which will be directed at the heart of Germany," said the House of Commons commentator.

"He (Churchill) will contend that history contains no precedent—not even in German blitzkrieg—for such speed in successive operations as North Africa, Tunisia, Sicily and Italy.

"Such enterprises, he will stress, cannot be undertaken without colossal organization. They are not carried through, as some critics seem to think, by means of a magic wand."

Great Risks.

The same line of reasoning was followed by other commentators, who pointed out that it was the Salerno landing entailed great risks.

Arrangements meanwhile were reported virtually complete for a British-United States-Russian political conference, with Foreign Minister Anthony Eden for Britain, W. Averill Harriman for the United States and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov for Russia at the table.

Churchill, looking exceptionally fit for the tasks ahead of him, reached an undisclosed point in England after an Atlantic plane crossing and completed the trip to London by special train.

Upon entering No. 10 Downing Street, he found his official residence gleaming with a fresh coat of paint and brand-new curtains.

Carrolltonians Reelect Mayor, Choose Council

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. CARROLLTON, Ga., Sept. 19.—Mayor Thomas J. Lawler was returned to office without opposition, and four city councilmen chosen—one by a margin of two votes in over 500 cast—in Carrollton's biennial city election yesterday.

The school and water and lights boards were also re-elected. J. R. (Bob) Wynn defeated J. H. Robinson, incumbent, for first ward councilman; W. T. Green was unopposed in the second; J. A. Upshaw, incumbent, was returned by a two-vote margin over R. C. Shaw in the third, and W. C. Cantrell unseated J. N. Crider in the fourth ward by 40 votes.

The officials will be installed at the October 4 session of city council. Mayor Lawler succeeded Stewart Martin two years ago when the latter retired from the office.

Rechosen as the city school board were T. J. Aycock, M. L. Fisher, William Taylor and Lester Murrah. The water and lights board composed of Pomp Schaeffer, Oliver Harris and J. D. Chaney was re-elected.

2 Burglaries Net Cash, Tool Loot

Burglars, operating during the weekend, looted two Atlanta establishments of cash and equipment valued at more than $1,300, police reports revealed yesterday.

The reports said a safe, in the office of the E. C. Transportation Company, of a Davis street, N. W., address, was robbed of $700 in cash, and other loot taken by the burglars was valued at about $25.

Entry was made by prizing the lock off the front door. The safe was opened, the police report said, and a number of war bonds and ration coupons was unmolesed.

Also burglarized, the reports showed, was Pye-Barker Supply Company, of 244 Forsyth street, S. W., entered through a rear window. Tools and drills, hard to replace under wartime restrictions, and valued at $659, were taken.

John A. Sibley Talks To Students at Berry

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MT. BERRY, Ga., Sept. 19.—John A. Sibley, of Atlanta, chairman of the board of Berry school's trustees, spoke to the joint chapel assembly of students and faculty yesterday. He was introduced by Acting Director Gordon Keown.

Sibley declared that the great thoughts are the basis for great deeds. "Thoughts are translated in the lives of individuals and are recognized by those around us. An institution, too," he said, "is recognized by its thoughts—and the Berry schools think in the lives of its students and faculty."

Huge Air Formations Roar Over Naziland

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Great formations of Allied planes plied back and forth across the English channel all day today, and early tonight strongly-escorted bombers thundered eastward to carry the new round-the-clock offensive into its fifth day and night.

American Marauder bombers returned to France by daylight to shower explosives on the important Nazi fighter base at Lille, Spitfires covering the Marauders destroyed two enemy fighters, and three Allied fighters were reported missing.

Berlin had its first respite in four nights last night as RAF Mosquito bombers, which had attacked the German capital for three straight nights, turned to the industrial Rhineland and bombed unspecified targets there. Other RAF planes laid mines in Nazi sea shipping lanes to round out the overnight assaults without loss to the British.

A south coast town observer who witnessed the formations of Allied planes criss-crossing the Channel today said:

"They made a formidable and impressive sight to people here who remember when it was Nazi bombers coming in from the airfields of northern France that they saw."

There was no official explanation of the recent inactivity of American and RAF heavy bombers, which had left the burden of the day and night assaults on Germany and Nazi-controlled territory to lighter bombers and fighters for the past two days.

Industry is helping win the war...
industry must help build a peacetime world

After the war is decisively won... what kind of world is essential for a just and durable peace?

This question is being asked today everywhere in the world.
No expert is needed to tell you the answer.

It must be a world as peaceful and neighborly as your own town; a world in which decent people can bring up their children decently. It must be a busy world where factories and farms are working and where there are jobs for all.

How can such a world be brought into being? The surest way is to think and talk about it. Full and complete discussions on the porches of this country, over its fences, in churches, schools, clubs, and always at meals—that is how the terms of A JUST AND DURABLE PEACE can be formulated.

In your discussions keep in mind this fact; your terms of peace must be such that the people of other lands can agree with them. There must be provision in your plans for sustained production and for consumption of that production.

Only a world peace that squares with the conscience of men of good will can be just. Only a just peace can endure.

English Church Leader Guest of Soviet Prelate

By HENRY C. CASSIDY.
MOSCOW, Sept. 19.—(P)—The Archbishop of York, wearing a purple cassock and four-pointed mitre, arrived at a Moscow airport today as the representative of the Church of England to visit the hierarchy of the Russian Orthodox Church.

A delegation of the Orthodox Church, including the long-bearded metropolitan Nikolai of Kiev and the Archbishop of Gorok, met him at the plane in the name of the metropolitan Sergei of Moscow, the newly elected patriarch of all Russia.

The archbishop came at the invitation of the patriarch, with whom a series of conferences was planned.

Emerging from the passenger plane in flowing robes at the central airport, the English prelate embraced the representatives of the Orthodox Church and heard an address of welcome by the metropolitan Nikolai.

On the way to Moscow from Teheran via Astrakhan where he stopped last night, the archbishop circled the ruins of Stalingrad. He said they were "an awe-inspiring spectacle."

The visit was the latest in a series of indications of revival of the Orthodox Church, including the restoration of the synod election of a patriarch with the sanction of the Soviet government.

Allied Fleet Reported Off Castelrosso

BODRUM, Turkey, Sept. 18.—(Delayed)—(P)—Italian military and civilian refugees arriving at this Aegean port from the Dodecanese island of Castelrosso said a large Allied fleet was hovering near the island.

Castelrosso is the most southerly of the Dodecanese islands and is only a short distance from the Turkish coast.

The refugees said a previous report by a foreign naval source of the Allied seizure of the islands of Lero and Cos was true.

A Reuters dispatch from London from Istanbul said British forces landed Saturday on the Greek island of Samos, north of the Dodecanese chain. This followed up a report by a foreign naval source in Ankara last Wednesday that Allies had landed on Samos, as well as on Lero and Cos.

2 More Years, Prediction of China Veteran

In a manner of speaking, the Allies "haven't begun to fight," Lieutenant Charles F. Davis, of Thomasville, Ga., who recently returned from 11 months of duty in the India-Burma-China theater of war, said here yesterday in a pep talk to leaders of a new public scrap drive.

The conquest of North Africa and Sicily and the invasion of Italy is only the "beginning of the beginning," the lieutenant said, predicting that the war against Hitler and Tojo will last at least two more years.

Addressing more than 200 scrap leaders of this region and members of the Southeastern Industry of Scrap Iron and Steel at a scrap campaign meeting in the Ansley hotel, Lieut. Davis continued: "We have got to get the idea out of our head that the war is just about over. . . we haven't really begun to fight. There will be others and the west will soon learn what our fight is about."

The Denver newspapers like Arnall, they have given him the outstanding play over all governors at the conference. But they extracted from his speech here yesterday only those sections that would line him up with them in an all-out fight against the national administration. It has been obvious that he has been playing a stiff game at a table where the cards were stacked against him.

Under a picture of Arnall, the Denver Post used as its cutline: "Governor Ellis Arnall of Georgia, youngest governor in the nation, who vigorously assailed paternalist federal government and called for a revision to home rule in a challenging speech."

Tug Guided 1,650 Miles by Pocket Atlas

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 20.—(P)—The Royal Navy announced today that an American-built tug, H. M. S. Destiny, had towed a ship 1,650 miles through fog and heavy seas all the way from Gibraltar to the United Kingdom without charts and with only a pocket atlas as a guide.

The Destiny was commissioned in Michigan in July, 1941, and has since sailed the Caribbean and Mediterranean seas and the Atlantic ocean.

George Links Industrial Dixie And Rate Parity

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(P)—Continued industrial development of the south, following the advances made during the war years, is the forecast of Senator George, Democrat, Georgia.

Citing industrial progress realized south of the Mason and Dixon line during the first World War, George said today he looks for a continuation of the trend in the next few years, with the additional spur of increasing commercial demands from Latin-American countries.

"That doesn't mean there will be a tremendous industrial development," he said in an interview. "But there will be some appreciable increase noted in the states along the gulf, and in the southeast and southwest."

He said the equalization of freight rates with other sections of the country would help as much as anything, and remarked that progress is being made along that line.

not immediately available.

Today's raids were not the first on those Japanese bases. Both have been bombed previously by land-based heavy bombers, presumably operating from American airfields in the Solomons or central Pacific area.

The raids, if made from carriers, were among the most daring attempted by a United States task force since the objectives were bases at which the enemy could employ long-range, land bombers to attack the carriers and their supporting warships.

Japs Surprised.
Admiral Nimitz' communique hints the Japanese were surprised as they were at Marcus when the bombers struck in the darkness of early morning. If the bombers were able to press home their attacks for several hours, their first assaults probably knocked out whatever air power the enemy had available for interception or for bombing the task force ships.

In all probability the Japanese air strength at both bases was light since the enemy has had heavy plane losses in the New Guinea and Solomons campaigns.

Following so closely behind the Marcus raid, this attack indicates the American Navy has mustered aircraft carrier replacements for losses suffered in the early months of the war and it forecasts increasing thrusts deeper into enemy territory.

The main use of Tarawa and Nauru to the enemy has been for plane reconnaissance and bombing raids on American outposts at Canton and Funa Futi islands. Nauru also is a major source of phosphate for the Japanese.

Base Canteen Serves Fliers From Afar

Transient pilots and crews of the air forces of the United States and the Allies from many parts of the world, making stops at the Atlanta Army Air Base, Atlanta airport, have discovered a nifty little Red Cross canteen and day room awaiting them.

There they rest, read, write and partake of refreshing food and drinks.

Mrs. William Perrin Nicolson, chairman of the Atlanta Canteen Corps, announced yesterday that the canteen will operate from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. daily, with Mrs. Phillip Jackson in charge. Members of the corps will be on duty. The hospitality of the canteen is necessarily limited, by its capacity, to the men passing through the city, she added.

The quarters are near the runways.

Several pilots have called for coffee and sandwiches in foreign accents and uniforms of the Dutch, Czechs and others of the Allies are noted occasionally mingled with the khaki around the food bar.

The canteen is even serving carrots for "good eyesight," it was revealed.

Who is J.Q.P.? John Q. Public, your neighbor. The guy who's always in a lather to buy in a hurry, for fear he'll be shut out.

What's he looking for? Among other things, a pure wool suit that should outlive the war. It must be a certain color. It must be the right pattern. It must be exactly his correct size. J.Q.P. is particular. Also a bit befogged.

Why should he take it easy? Because this is no time to get the heebie-jeebies. And because he'll get what he wants, when he wants it—at B. C.

Who is B. C.? Bond Clothes, of course. Where every suit is 100% pure wool. Where selections bloom in profusion, as always. And where prices are ruggedly holding the line against inflation.

How's it done? Bond Clothes are made in Bond's own workrooms. That works wonders in keeping selections up to snuff. It also keeps prices down. Doing business direct with the maker pays real dividends. Here's the evidence: Style Manor Suits, $28.00. Park Lane Suits, $32.00. Executive Group Suits, $36.50 and $40.75.

Heroic Crew Brings 'Jalbo' to Georgia

By LIEUTENANT JOHN L. DOUGLAS,
Public Relations Officer,
Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

TURNER FIELD, ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 19.—Into Turner Field last week came a battle-weary B-26 and its crew offering ample proof the Nazis have been taking a beating.

Six sky veterans, loaded with decorations, brought in "Jalbo, Sky King the 2nd," whose nose legend proclaimed it had done battle in the skies above Tunisia, Pantelleria, Sicily, Sardinia and Lampedusa. It has thundered over the target 37 times, its gunners have wrecked the lives of eight Nazi fighter planes, and the bombardier sank three enemy warships. From Sfax to Messina it has fought the Nazis.

The crew has seen more battle than the ship, and their decorations prove they didn't fight it over easy targets. Captain Bill Erwin, of Houston, Texas, commands the ship. He is a slight, mild-mannered young man, veteran of 19 missions, who wears the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters. Lieutenant Richard Meldon, of Boston, Mass., the co-pilot, has driven his bomber across 19 targets and wears the Air Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters. Lieutenant Randall Jones, of Roanoke, Va., the bombardier, has dropped bombs on 19 targets and six times rode the nose down on skip-bombing attacks.

Erwin Sinks Ship. Captain Erwin won his DFC in a nip-and-tuck battle with Messerschmidts after a skip-bombing raid. One afternoon he zoomed his B-26 across the water after a fat German merchant ship. The convoy let go a barrage of ack-ack but Erwin went right on in at 150 feet. The bomb skipped into the ship and it began to sink, but other pom-poms shot away the elevator and Erwin came out with approximately 15 feet of altitude, a wounded gunner and one bad engine.

He started limping home at a low altitude and was promptly nailed by a swarm of Messerschmidts. The B-26 gunners of the formation threw up a hail of fire, but one Nazi fell in the formation behind Erwin and shot up his wing while staying away from the B-26 fire. The wounded gunner managed to crawl forward to a fire extinguisher and back again to put out the fire while other American planes shot down the formation following Nazi.

By this time, the formation was over land and Erwin began to look for a place to come down. The most suitable place proved to be a swamp and in they went. He set it down easy and all the crew walked away, although the plane was a wreck. This flying feat won Erwin the DFC and a great desire never to win another one in that manner.

Next Brush With Death. Erwin's next brush with death came on his last mission before coming home. His group was assigned blocks of warehouses in Messina and gave them a precise pounding. But the Nazi flak was thick and it pounded through the plane like rain. "I caught a couple in the leg," Erwin said, "but they only proved to be scratches and I got to leave with the others. That was the worst sweating out I ever did during a raid."

Lieutenant Meldon, although a pilot, had the satisfaction of sinking an Axis destroyer in what must be record time. He was riding co-pilot on a skip-bombing mission when they sighted a large convoy. The pilot went in low after the destroyer and Meldon dropped the bombs. When they went in the destroyer was there—when they looked back four seconds later it was gone.

But in that four seconds the B-26 had munched smack between the smoke stack and the ship, missing them by a matter of inches. With the ship full of holes, Meldon and his crew started home, only to see a bevy of Messerschmidts coming out after them. They then began a game of tag far over the Mediterranean that lasted for hours. The fighters couldn't come out too far because of their light gas load and the B-26 couldn't get in too close. Finally, with their gas running out, the Americans broke through and the pilot made a belly landing on the home base.

Lieutenant Jones holds the officers' record for missions. He made 25 of which six were skip-bombing raids that do a bombardier no good at all. "I made two rides I never will forget," Jones said, "one was over Sardinia which was heavily defended. We were on the bombing run when I heard an enemy fighter was coming. I gave him a burst and then went back to my bombight. It was pretty hard to concentrate on the target while that Messerschmidt was shooting the glass out around me."

The other unforgettable raid for Jones was a smash at Messina. Despite the Allies' heavy air bombardment, the Germans had been getting supplies across and into the town. Jones' squadron was ordered to destroy four blocks of warehouses.

"We sent 26 B-26's across on that one," Jones said, "and I saw every bomb fall into that area. I was riding the last ship and I swear that not a warehouse was left standing."

Jones is downright vehement about the results of the American precision bombing. He visited Tunisia after its capture and said that only the docks were destroyed.

"There were four sections of docks completely obliterated," he said, "but a block away the trolley cars were still running and not a building was touched. That bombing was done from a medium altitude and shows that precision bombing can really do the job."

The three officers all said the Germans had good fighter planes and pilots but there just wasn't enough of them to stop the American onslaught.

The visiting pilots were all members of General Doolittle's Strategic Air Force, which meant they concentrated on enemy shipping and supply lanes rather than blasting the enemy troops.

The bombing of Pantelleria was a bomber's dream according to the three fliers. "We just went out every day and dumped bombs all over the island," Lieutenant Meldon said.

The short campaign at Lampedusa was dismissed as a minor league affair and not worthy to be counted with the other missions.

The "Jalbo" and its crew returned to the States July 15. Its crew members then spent well-deserved furloughs at home, after which they launched on their tour of training fliers, most of them advanced schools, imparting their experiences to aid aviation cadets of the AAF who now are in training.

Among other men of the Jalbo, who have seen plenty of action in the air, are Staff Sergeant Vernon W. Ohland, of Spokane, Wash., gunner, winner of the Silver Star, Purple Heart, Air Medal and two Oak Leaf Clusters; Technical Sergeant Chester M. Allen, of McArthur, Ohio, radio-gunner, who wears the Air Medal and four Oak Leaf Clusters; Technical Sergeant Hugh A. Jones, of Claymont, Del., engineer-gunner, wearer of the Air Medal and two Oak Leaf Clusters.

The only noncombatant member of the crew with the group is Master Sergeant Virgil W. Galloway, of Tallahassee, Ala., the ship's flight chief.

At Turner last week they addressed all lower and upper class cadets, telling them of their experiences and impressing upon them the need to grasp and learn everything they can while still in training, since it would all come to be vastly important when they are in combat. Of great import were their statements that formation flying is perhaps the most important part of combat flying.

THEY SAW ACTION—And plenty of it! Here's part of the crew of a B-26 bomber that bears the name of "Jalbo, Sky King, the 2d," which visited Turner Field, Albany, Ga., last week as part of a nation-wide tour. Left to right are Lieutenant Richard Meldon, co-pilot; Lieutenant Randall Jones, bombardier; Sergeant Hugh A. Jones, engineer-gunner, and Sergeant Chester M. Allen, radio-gunner. They've been everywhere.

Dr. Morgan, 82, Pioneer Dental Gas User, Dies

Dr. Eglan Thomas Morgan, 82, the first doctor in Atlanta to use gas for dental surgery, died unexpectedly last night at his home, 474 Cooper street, S. W.

Funeral plans will be announced later by J. Austin Dillon.

Surviving are his wife, a granddaughter, Mrs. Richard H. Gay, of West Newton, Mass., and a brother, Dr. S. C. Morgan, of Union City, Ga.

The veteran Atlanta dentist introduced gas surgery here in 1887, two years after he opened his office in Atlanta.

When Dr. Morgan came to the city there were only 17 dentists in Atlanta. He was the last survivor of that group and was still practicing at the time of his death.

The Atlanta dentist was one of the first tenants of the Atlanta National building. He was still in the same offices when government occupancy forced him to vacate.

Since then, Dr. Morgan had maintained his office at his home, which he built and had lived in for more than a half a century.

Dr. Morgan received his D. S. degree from the Louisville (Ky.) College of Dentistry. He later received an M. D. degree from the Atlanta Medical College, but he never practiced medicine.

The beloved Atlanta was an active member of the Capitol Avenue Baptist church.

Yanks Rescued From Hog Pen By Fifth Army

By REYNOLDS PACKARD

Representing the Combined American Press—Distributed by Associated Press.

WIT AN AMERICAN ASSAULT FORCE IN THE SALERNO SECTOR, Sept. 19.—Two American Doughboys who helped take an enemy hill by a bayonet charge and then were cut off by a German counterattack climbed out of an Italian hogpen today as the Fifth Army's advance swept past them.

They had been hiding from German patrols for six days—sleeping and eating alongside the hogs while being looked after by a friendly Italian farmer named Angelo who has a sister somewhere in Massachusetts and a cousin in New York City.

The soldiers are Private Don J. Ballata, 25, of Chicago, Ill., and Private Saragoso Salinas, 23, of Skidmore, Texas.

Russians

from the invaders, the Russians stormed and captured Yartsevo and Dukhovschina, 30 miles northeast of Smolensk. Both of these points had been fortified by the Germans over a two-year period.

"Thus the strongly fortified German defense line which has been in existence for a long time and which closed the so-called Smolensk gates has been broken," Stalin's triumphant announcement read.

Moscow's victory cannon boomed their salutes to the victory on the approaches to Smolensk, 230 miles west of the Soviet capital.

The two orders of the day and a communique recorded by the Soviet monitor disclosed that a bleeding German army was reeling back toward the Dnieper river, no longer "the invincibles" of 1941. Berlin admitted a "hot pursuit" by the Russians.

A Stockholm dispatch quoted the Helsinki newspaper Helsingin Sanomat as saying that the German retreat "is of frightful dimensions, worse than the Finns expected."

The Finns, the dispatch added, were increasingly worried by their status as a co-belligerent of a losing Germany.

One Russian unit is within 42 miles of Kiev, the Ukraine capital and German citadel, ripping to shreds the German rearwards opposing it. When Kiev is reached, probably within a few days, the Russians will have accomplished a 670-mile march from Stalingrad in less than a year.

Soviet ships of the Sea of Azov flotilla were aiding the Russian land sweep along the shores toward Melitopol by shelling the retreating Germans and landing marines in the rear of the enemy.

Soviet general Kolpachki, who liberated Rzhnev, on the central front, was disclosed to be in charge of the Red armies that broke the Derna river line south-west of Bryansk two days ago in a sweep toward lower White Russia.

The commanders and officers of his army were decorated with the Order of Suvorov.

The Russian units liberating Prikluk, Lubny, Krasnograd, Pavlograd and other cities along the Dnieper river approaches henceforth will have those cities attached to their regular names.

The fall of Dukhovschina and Yartsevo on Smolensk's approaches were accomplished after a four-day fight, and the Russian units who captured those cities will be known in the future by the names of those towns, Stalin's order said.

Radio listeners here heard the old clock on the ancient Red gate of Moscow chime 9 o'clock just before Moscow's 12 cannon fired 12 salutes to celebrate the great central front victory.

Coast Guard Rescues

John Gilbert Yacht

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A 100-foot yacht, Four Winds, adrift in the Gulf of Mexico seven days because of a broken fuel line, was safe in St. Petersburg port today after being towed nearly 100 miles by a Coast Guard cutter operating from the St. Petersburg Navy section base.

The yacht, formerly owned by the late John Gilbert, movie actor, was being taken from Panama City to Miami, where it will be converted into a freighter for service between Miami and Caribbean islands.

Bomb Squad Finds It's Only a Clock

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The ticking inside a locked suitcase early today sounded threatening to a worried soldier at the Army induction center. He called police.

The police radio car made a slow trip to the East river, to a spot where a bomb could be exploded safely.

However, Private Joseph F. de Terlizzi, of headquarters induction squad, dashed after the police car, and took command of the ominous bag. He opened it boldly.

He found his precious alarm clock safe.

'Sweater Girl' Lends Zest to Bill at Roxy

A splendid all-around show is this week's bill at the Roxy. June Preisser, blond Hollywood starlet, supposedly the original "sweater girl" of the movies, entertains with dance and song; Tenor Henri Therrien brings down the house with his vocal renditions; Duke Art and Company star in a comedy and amuse with quick-changing clay faces; the Dan Fitch chorus girls are as pretty as ever; Harold Peary tickles your funnybone in "Gilder-sleeve's Bad Day"; a Looney-Toon comedy and musical round out a lengthy and enjoyable program.

Miss Preisser has just the figure to make a sweater look good, and her dancing repertoire is excellent. The audience appreciated her act, but Henri Therrien, who was here just five weeks ago, received more encores. He sang "Ireland," "La Donna E Mobile," and his own variation of "The Last Time I Saw Paris."

Duke Art, a handy chap with some clay, molded baby faces, pretty girls' countenances, Indians and other subjects in seconds' time and made them lifelike. His is a peculiar art, but definitely art, although he smashes one face to mold another.

I almost forgot to mention that the bill also includes some "Secret Jap Film Seized," an Army short in technicolor or training "Mountain Fighters" for scouting and of offensive tactics amid snowy peaks, and The Borden's dancy stylings.

PLANNING TONIGHT'S SPECTACLE—Mike Benton, grand marshal of tonight's big parade, threshes out final details with armed forces leaders who are co-operating in the Third War Loan procession. Seated, are Colonel T. S. Halstead, Benton, and Major Robert S. Pendleton, of the Marine Corps. Standing, left, is Lieutenant H. O. Stark, of the Naval Air Station, and Lieutenant Commander James G. Driver. The parade through downtown Atlanta streets will start at 8 o'clock sharp tonight.

Military Digs Big Parade's Deep, Toils In Bond Campaign Formation Announced

Officers and enlisted men clear down to the buck privates in military camps and posts throughout this area have dug deep to buy bonds in the Third War Loan and what's more they've contributed their time and talents to inducing civilians to dig as deep. Fourth Service Command headquarters reported yesterday. Glowing reports they send to headquarters is evidence of their accomplishments.

Soldiers at Camp Butler, N. C., put on a parade in Hillsboro and Burlington, which sold $70,000 worth of bonds. . . . The Army band at Fort McPherson is on hand for every rally and occasion in that area. . . . The band from the Atlanta Army Ordnance Depot shines frequently behind a "bond stand". . . . The Second Army, at Chattanooga, sent tanks and guns out of a maneuver area for parades in Tennessee. . . . Camp Sibert, Ala., sent war equipment for a show at Gadsden and Chattanooga.

Fort Bragg (N. C.) soldiers participated in 25 parades, each including howitzers, armored cars, jeeps, and "long toms" or 165-mm. cannons. . . . Camp Stewart soldiers took a band and anti-aircraft battery to Jesup for a rally that sold $101,000 of Jesup's $300,000 bond quota. . . . And at Camp Stewart, military personnel bought $135,241 in bonds while civilian employees bought $28,479.

The Seventh Armored Division, at Fort Benning, set themselves a goal of selling $150,000 of bonds and 200 officers and enlisted men will interview every man in the division on bond-buying before the campaign is over. They have already sold $100,000 of bonds in September and expect to reach a $500,000 mark. . . . At Fort Jackson, S. C., inductees have already purchased $60,000 of bonds this month and you know the salary of a buck private. . . . The records go on and on as the soldiers march. . . . For this is a great Army we have and a great job they're doing. . . . in fighting and in the buying and selling of war bonds. If you don't believe it, just ask Captain E. W. Linthicum, war bond officer of the Fourth Service Command.

Peanut Shelling Plant Planned for Richland

RICHLAND, Ga., Sept. 19.—A large peanut shelling plant is expected to be installed here by early springtime. Storage houses are already available for buying and storing peanuts through the fall months.

Stewart and Webster counties have produced thousands of tons of fine peanuts this year and pickers are busy. Most of the pickers are contracting to pick and deliver the peanuts to the storage houses and mills. They will be more peanut hay in the two counties than ever before.

ANIMAL HOSPITAL.

MONTEZUMA, Ga., Sept. 19.—Dr. W. V. Petty, of Thomson, will arrive this week to take over the animal hospital operated here by Dr. H. G. Brown, who is moving to Arkansas. Dr. Petty is a former resident of Dawson, attended Abraham Baldwin College, the University of Georgia and took the doctor's degree in veterinary medicine at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.

Agrarian Leader Hits Farm 'Manpower Waste'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP) Inadequate financing and equipment and "freezing" of farm labor have created in agriculture, through no fault of the farmer, "the most glaring of wartime wastes of manpower," James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union, said today.

"Farm manpower," he said in a formal statement, "is being wasted in two ways: 1. Approximately 1,300,000 farm families are prevented by underfinancing, under-equipment and consequent under-employment from producing war foods at maximum; 2. Farm labor, frozen in most of the 3,000 counties under the provisions of public law 45 which require approval of the county agent before federal funds are used in recruiting and transporting farm labor from state to state, is short in many areas and is surplus in others."

Patriotic Cop Sells Car To Buy War Bond

George F. Cole is a patriotic policeman.

The elderly bailiff in Recorder Luke Arnold's traffic court bought his second $1,000 war bond within two weeks yesterday, selling his car to put more money into the war effort. He now has invested $8,000 in war bonds.

Cole has two sons, two grandsons and several nephews in the armed forces.

Douglas College Opens Tomorrow

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

DOUGLAS, Ga., Sept. 19.—South Georgia College will begin its fall term Tuesday, officials of the college said yesterday.

The special business courses will begin on that day, including shorthand, typing, accounting and office practice, subjects required for passage of certain civil service examinations.

Courses leading toward degrees in commerce and the A. B. degree in education and home economics are offered to students planning for college.

Bond Quota Oversold at Douglas Rally

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 19. After a big war bond rally held here yesterday, it was revealed that Douglas county's quota of $98,100 had been oversold by $500, and as far as known this is one of the first counties in the state to meet its goal.

W. S. Allen was master of ceremonies at the exercises, attended by thousands of Douglas county citizens. W. M. Burt and W. D. Lloyd were co-chairmen of the drive, Burt for the city of Douglasville, and Lloyd for the county.

School pupils participated in the program today, and a 30-piece band from Fort McPherson furnished music.

Douglas county citizens were jubilant tonight that the bond quota has been oversubscribed.

Seven Killed, 53 Hurt In Bus-Train Crash

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Seven persons were killed and at least 53 others injured today when a crowded Greyhound bus, bound from Memphis, Tenn., to Chicago, collided with a two-car, diesel-powered Missouri Pacific railroad passenger train two miles south of here.

Speedy Victory Keynotes Vets' Omaha Meeting

OMAHA, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Key theme of the 25th annual American Legion convention which will open here Tuesday for three days is "doing our part to speed conclusion of the war." National Commander Roane Waring, of Memphis, Tenn., declared on his arrival today.

Of postwar policy Waring added:

"The Legion is committed, and properly so, to future co-operation with other peace loving countries in preventing another world-wide catastrophe. The Legion believes that America, big and strong and powerful as it is, must take a definite stand and do its part in the preservation of the future peace."

"To do this America must at all times maintain its armed strength, so as to be effective. And whatever it does it must do as a sovereign nation in co-operation with other sovereign nations."

Warren Atherton, of Stockton, Cal., regarded by pre-convention delegates to have the best chance of succeeding Waring as commander, said he believed the Legion's main responsibility is helping the nation in making the necessary adjustments to get the maximum efficiency out of manpower, thus bolstering the war effort.

Atherton, 51-year-old attorney and national defense chairman of the Legion since 1939, said that in his opinion a universal service act—sought by the Legion for many years—would be the best means of achieving maximum manpower efficiency.

All but five of the casualties were passengers on the bus, Coroner Lon W. Gasaway of Williamson county said. The train, running from Marion, Ill., to St. Louis, had only three passengers and three crew members. Two members of the crew and the three passengers suffered minor injuries.

Among the bus passengers who were injured were Dr. Luciano Milla Cisneros, 53, Honduran minister to Guatemala, and his daughter, Sofia Milla, 22. Their injuries were only slight and hospital attendants said they were expected to recover quickly.

The bus was traveling down-grade when it collided with the train. The cab of the bus was demolished and one of its sides caved in. The engine-baggage car of the train was overturned, but the coach remained upright.

Officials of the Greyhound Bus Lines did not know how many passengers the bus carried, but they said all seats were occupied, and some passengers were standing in the aisle.

Coroner Gasaway identified the driver as J. R. Hard, 38, Memphis, driver of the bus; Louis Lookofsky, Paducah, Ky.; Ed White, Johnston City; Dorothy Pate, Ypsilanti, Mich.; Eddie Louis Marshall, one-year-old Negro, Huttling, Ark., and Georgia Hawkins, Negro, Milwaukee, Wis.

An unidentified woman was thrown from the bus under the wheels of the train and was decapitated.

Ambulances removed the injured to hospitals at West Frankfort, Herrin and Marion and to an emergency center in Herrin set up by the Red Cross and Office of Civilian Defense.

Foundry Worker Wills War Bonds to Uncle Sam
BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A foundry worker who came from Poland 30 years ago has named the United States as the beneficiary of his war bond holdings.

John Konieczny explained today that "if anything should happen to me, I would want to know that what money I have will go back to the country that gave it to me."

NOW, LET'S EVERYBODY SING THIS VERSE—From many departments in the Bell bomber plant came these workers to join Ralph Thomas, of Atlanta, in relaxing songs during the lunch-hour. It's a treat for the many spectators who heard the singers.

C. L. Scupin, 58, Bomber Plant Workers Gather Hall Telephone Executive, Dies

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
GAINESVILLE, Ga., Sept. 19.—

Clarence Lee Scupin, 58, for more than 35 years connected with the Southern Bell Telephone Company here, died unexpectedly last night at his home following a heart attack.

Services will be held Tuesday at 4 p. m. in the Central Baptist church. Burial will be in Alta Vista cemetery.

For 31 years he had been plant chief at the local exchange and had received recognition many times from company officials. He was a Mason and a member of the Baptist church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ina Twitty Scupin; two sons, C. L. Scupin Jr., of Drew Field, Tampa, Fla.; J. E. Scupin, with the U. S. Army in North Africa; a brother, T. J. Scupin, of Miami, Fla., and three sisters, Mrs. Frank Traber, Mrs. Lee Talley and Mrs. Archie Backus, all of Atlanta.

deviation from city noontime "hikes" through peopled stores—an unbending relaxation from concentration of tasks in the production of Bell bombers are the restases of song which are attended by a gathering of bomber-dears and master minds in the basement of the plant near Marietta. Crowding the stairways, squatting on the landings, hanging with gaping interest on banisters, and crouched on the floors, is a gathering which has swelled from a lunch time, or barber shop quartet, to nearly 200 singers.

Keynoters of the a capella choir is Ralph Thomas of cowl assembly department, from Atlanta, who with Charlie Womack, "Decatur, struggled along with four hymn books, until spectators Works Manager Julius Domonkos and General Superintendent W. A. Carrington one day suggested to the Recreation Club, an employee organization, to give the songsters 50 more copies.

"I guess the singing improved 100 per cent after that—and the crowds, too. Not only is the singing better, but the morale is higher in the departments that participate. I believe we're going to need 100 books before it's over," Thomas said.

The first song hoisted by the congregation is usually something like "Won't It Be Wonderful There?" or "Anywhere Is Home." From then on, the singers volunteer numbers like "147" or "128"—the loudest obviously wins out. Then they sway off into "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder."

Mary Hughes and her husband, Clifford, of the salvage department, are regular attendants. "This makes up for me for some of the church services I miss. By the time Sunday comes, so many chores have piled up at home that I hardly ever get to church any more. I always send the children to Sunday school, but I usually stay home and try to catch up on things."

"It's a good thing because it keeps us together. Another thing, I've met more people from other departments than I ever would have met otherwise, and I've made some friends worth keeping," Womack said.

Every day when the end-of-the-lunch-hour whistle blows, the books are collected, counted, and locked away.

ceived 25 new airplanes; in June, 1943, almost 2,000."

Emphasis in the swift job of building the world's mightiest fleet has been laid on hard-hitting warships, combatant vessels that can battle it out with any enemy craft.

In that fighting category 333 new ships have been completed since July, 1940, at a cost of $3,000,000,000. But the other types have not been neglected. Mine craft and patrol boats built in the last three years total 1,274 and cost $320,000,000; auxiliaries number 151, and district craft 654.

Landing Craft.

Landing craft, the boats that carry troops, tanks and other fighting equipment ashore on strange beaches to wrest them from enemy control, make up the largest total—12,964 new boats costing $1,000,000,000.

"No naval construction program of comparable size and speed," the Navy says, "has ever been accomplished by any other nation. Ability to build this huge new naval force—and to continue to build at the present rate—is one of the foundation stones of our military strategy."

"It underlies our amphibious attacks in the Pacific, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. It protects our long, exterior supply routes running across thousands of miles of ocean."

"Most important, it makes feasible a strategy of attack, with all the risks it implies. Ability to build—or, if necessary, to rebuild—on this scale is one of the basic advantages which the American Navy holds over fleets of all other nations."

Emphasis Shifted.

Emphasis throughout the three-year period—in which 58 warships were lost and 129 transferred to Allied nations or converted to noncombat use—was shifted from one type to another as urgency dictated.

Fire power of planes and ships alike has been increased, says the Navy.

"New Navy fighter planes fire in one minute five times the weight of projectiles that their 1940 predecessors fired. A modern battleship's antiaircraft fire power is 100 times what it was three years ago."

And, with all the new production, there's more to come. The Navy says that ships on the ways in July, 1942, had a value of $1,800,000,000. On that same date this year the value of "construction in place" was $3,200,000,000.

"Despite its tremendous size, the naval shipbuilding program still moves upward," concludes the Navy's production review.

Women at Work for a Railroad at War

America needs millions of women to take over war jobs... to stay with those jobs... to help speed the day when our fighting men will return victorious!

Santa Fe women are answering this call all along the line.

Right now thousands of Santa Fe women are doing war-vital work to "keep 'em rolling." Many are pitching into "unglamorous" jobs... greasing engines, operating turntables, welding shovels, working in blacksmith shops, and cleaning roller bearings. They take pride in their work, too!

Many of these women have husbands, sweethearts, brothers or sons in the armed forces. Many came to work to replace a Santa Fe relative who had been called into service. Others took jobs because they knew womanpower must step in when manpower goes to war.

☆ We of the Santa Fe salute these women who know that what they are doing is vital to Victory!

of Robinson & Stephens, quite on the jump these days. The main parking, repair and general service station is located in a large building at 94 South Pryor street, where it has operated some four years, and where it is well patronized by transient trade as well as by many motorists who are daily engaged in work in and around that section. The big plant, which is open day and night, runs through to Central avenue, and although the government has leased some of the space in the structure, the large basement is used for storage of passenger cars and trucks, with a total space in the garage to accommodate 400 cars. The Robinson & Stephens garage is one of the best equipped in the city for wrecker and road service. It has ready on call at a minute's notice a fleet of four wreckers, which are called daily throughout this city and section to come to the rescue of motorists. Sometimes it is quite a distance, but help is always given, where the distance is not too great. Wrecked cars are not only pulled in, but the concern does such repair work on them as puts them back in service again. Any kind of road service is always available. At the Pryor street place the firm handles a line of standard tires and batteries, as well as the sale of Texaco gas and oils, and other necessary accessories. It gives complete washing and lubricating service, and also alterations in proving a welcome convenience for motorists, who are "cashing in" on the 20 years' experience Mr. Stephens has had in the garage, repair, storage and parking business. Wylie Robinson, the other member of the firm, is also a man of several years of experience in the garage business. Robinson & Stephens also operate a parking and filling station at the corner of Pryor and Decatur streets. There Pure Oil products are provided for motorists, as well as prompt and satisfactory service on washing, lubrication, parking, and the like. Another place under management of the concern is the Pryor and Hunter street corner parking lot, while still another convenience offered to the motoring public is the big parking lot on Peachtree street adjoining the Fox theater. This place also affords accommodation for a number of bowlers who patronize the big alleys across the street. The firm guarantees courteous and prompt service at all points, and is appreciative of the patronage of a great score of motorists. When you have trouble on the road, or find yourself in wrecker trouble, call this concern, at Jackson 5636.

FDR, Hull Notes Please Soviet Labor Magazine

MOSCOW, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Soviet trade union magazine "War and the Working Class" declared today that President Roosevelt's and Secretary of State Cordell Hull's denials of charges that the State Department was unfriendly to the Soviet Union were of "great significance."

"They demonstrated the fact that American public opinion reacts quickly to anything connected with American-Soviet relations," the magazine said.

"Readers recall of course that several months ago the same quick definite disavowal followed the statement by United States Ambassador Admiral William H. Standley who unexpectedly made to American correspondents in Moscow a declaration alleging that the Russian people had not been given proper information as to American help to Russia, although this did not correspond to the truth."

The magazine said there "exists in American circles a great desire for friendship with the U. S. S. R. and further improvement in Soviet-American relations. This is also the aim with which the people of the U. S. S. R. are imbued."

At the same time the magazine renewed criticism of AMG (Allied Military Government of Occupied Territories), asserting that the AMG was opposed to the principles of democracy.

Recognizing the necessity for the Allied high command to establish control over territory taken from the enemy, the magazine said, however, that "for the consolidation of victory it is necessary to attract quickly local forces capable of assisting the Allies in their struggle against the enemy."

"It is necessary to establish local organs of power on a democratic basis."

Her promotion led the newspaper Aftonbladet to speculate that Stockholm might become the stage for an important political conference involving Russia, perhaps to discuss postwar European political plans.

Aftonbladet said various peace rumors had developed around Stockholm and "it is not impossible that a German-Russian meeting is in preparation." The newspaper expressed doubt, however, that a peace conference involving Finland was in prospect here.

Admiral Standley Leaves Moscow

MOSCOW, Sept. 19.—(AP)—U. S. Ambassador Admiral William H. Standley left Moscow by plane for Washington today for what have been described officially as consultations.

He rose at dawn this morning and left from the central airport, where he was seen off by the embassy staff.

Maxwell M. Hamilton, former chief of the Far Eastern department of the State Department, who came to Moscow in July as embassy counselor, remained as American charge d'affaires.

Addressing the twenty-second annual convention of the Disabled American Veterans, Pennington disclosed that 485 persons had been convicted in sabotage cases, with other cases pending, but he added that most cases in industrial plants involved persons "who have personal axes to grind." The nearest approach to accomplished sabotage directed by an enemy government, he said, was the case of the eight would-be saboteurs landed at Long Island, six of whom later were executed.

Shift British Prisoners In Italy to Germany
LONDON, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The German propaganda agency Transocean said today that British prisoners in camps in central and northern Italy had been turned over by the Germans and that most of them had been sent to Germany.

The broadcast, heard by the Associated Press, said that in a number of cases Italians had opened the gates to prisoners of war, but that most of those who gained their liberty had been rounded up.

"I understand it's some kind of a bet, Sir!"

10,000 of State Library's Books To Be Sent to University System

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

Many rare books—such as cost the big Duke University library thousands of dollars to obtain—will be transferred from Georgia's State Library to the libraries of the University System within the next few months under a plan approved by the Governor, the Board of Regents and the state librarian "to better serve more people of Georgia."

Miss Ella May Thornton, state librarian, estimates the total value of books and publications to be deposited in the University of Georgia library at Athens and the Georgia Tech library here will exceed $25,000. There are 10,000 volumes.

The transfers are being made because the State Library has long outgrown its quarters in the state capitol building, causing hundreds of older books to be placed in locations not easily accessible to the public, and because the books undoubtedly will be used more for scholarly research in the fields of education, science and agriculture in university libraries than at the state capitol, Miss Thornton said.

Students of the University System will be able to use many books which their school libraries could not now obtain at any price, Miss Thornton went on. Established in 1831, the State Library was until the turn of the century the only large public library in Georgia collecting and preserving material.

Service Continues.

The state librarian was quick to add, however, that the transfer of deposits to university libraries in no manner abandons the State Library's service as planned by the legislature. Miss Thornton herself is busy doing research work and preparing information for the newly appointed commission to redraft Georgia's constitution.

The State Library will continue its service to administrative agencies of the government, building up its collections of laws, government and "Georgia" publications, the librarian said.

The practice of depositing part of the State Library books with university libraries, where future citizens may use them, is not new with the coming transfer of 10,000 volumes, Miss Thornton continued. Other states have done it, and Georgia has deposited many books in libraries of the University System for at least a half century. It never before has made a transfer of this quantity, however.

Started in 1894.

As early as December 22, 1894, the State Library sent a first edition Wormsloe of the "Acts of General Assembly of the Colony of Georgia, 1755 to 1774" to the University of Georgia library. Present value of this book is $650. The State Library has another copy of it, along with the original letter of William E. Boggs, chancellor of the university in 1894, expressing appreciation for the book.

BETTER USE FOR BOOKS—Lena Wagon, Rebecca Manning and Julia McMichael gather around part of the books in the state library which soon will be sent to University System libraries. They are particularly interested in a first edition Wormsloe on "Acts of General Assembly of the Colony of Georgia, 1755 to 1774."

For the past few years the State Library has been placing many specialized books in engineering and allied subjects with the Georgia Tech library, and other specialized books with the University of Georgia library. By supplying the University of Georgia law library with copies of Georgia law publications, the State Library played a part in the development of the school's new library. The school was authorized to swap these Georgia books to other colleges for copies of laws of other states.

"The State Library and the libraries of Tech and Georgia maintain a 24-hour exchange plan whereby I can get any books I need from them and they can get any publications they need from the State Library within a day's time," Miss Thornton said.

It probably will take months to go through the collection of books and place them in the university libraries. After this large supply of valuable books and publications are transferred Miss Thornton said the State Library will continue to send such current specialized books to the University System libraries from time to time as will better serve the public.

Record Crops Are Grown on Georgia Farms

By HARRY LEE.

As American troops batter forward toward the occupation of Italy, Georgia farmers are making record-breaking crops to supply the food necessary to follow up invasion and to keep the home front larger well stocked.

In spite of farm labor shortages, and the difficulty of replacing worn-out farm machinery, the farmers of the state have grown the greatest peanut crops ever produced in Georgia and corn and tobacco crops are well over last year's totals, the September Georgia crop report issued by the Crop Reporting Service at Athens, showed.

To the increase made by the farmers must be added foods produced by the thousands of backyard, victory gardeners, much of it lining pantry shelves for winter consumption.

Another factor in Georgia's increasing contribution to the national feedbag is the growing importance of the cattle industry in this state, with more farmers planting covering feed crops than ever before and the quality of stock being raised daily through the efforts of livestock men and experienced feeders who have learned the dollar and cents value of buying the best breeds of Hereford, Angus and Shorthorn steers.

Increases over last year for major crops in Georgia were shown in the report by comparative figures released in the September crop report. Corn production increased from 39,160,000 bushels in 1942 to 41,736,000 bushels this year; tobacco increased from 59,860,000 pounds to 65,889,000, and peanuts increased from 627,690,000 to 979,200,000 pounds, the largest crop ever produced. Tobacco sold on Georgia markets this season brought $26,000,000, also a record sum.

The report also said the indicated hay crop this year would set a new record and bushels of both sweet and Irish potatoes grown were far over last year's crops.

Dr. Marion Souchon To Show Paintings

Paintings of Dr. Marion Souchon, the famous New Orleans surgeon, will feature the fall show of the Fine Arts Gallery of the University of Georgia, which opens September 29. Now 70 years old, Dr. Souchon amazed critics with his phenomenal paintings when he turned to the brush and canvas as a hobby in his waning years. Many of his works have won national recognition.

CITY MANAGER HONORED.

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 19.—C. Q. Wright, Albany city manager, was elected third vice president of the International City Managers' Association which recently convened in Chicago. When he returned to his office in Albany he found a vase of roses with appropriate message of appreciation placed there by city hall employees.

IF YOU ARE WORKING AT ALL TODAY YOU ARE DOING AN ESSENTIAL JOB!

Farmer or rancher! Butcher or baker! Salesman, truck driver, cook, laundress! In a wartime economy stripped to bare necessities, every job that is being done is vital to our war effort!

We need raw materials in ever-increasing quantities—and we must produce them! We must convert cotton into clothing, produce into food, steel into weapons! We must transport these products where they are needed—distribute them for use!

For every man building bombers, dozens of us must do these everyday jobs! For every hero fighting on the battlefield, 18 of us must fight undramatically at home! For every country joining the Allied Cause, thousands more will be required!

We must do the jobs we know, or our time will be wasted! We must maintain the systems we have, or economic collapse at home will cause our forces ignominy and defeat in battle!

Gary Cooper Goes Overseas To Entertain Boys in Service

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 19.—(INS)—My crystal ball prediction that Gary Cooper would make a movie for William Goetz comes true. When Bill first broke with 20th Century-Fox I printed that one of the first stars he would bag would be Cooper, and sure enough he has signed to play in "Casanova Brown." This, for which Gary is offering his services, is not a biography. I had a long talk with Cooper not long ago and he said he was just about fed up on playing other men's lives and wanted a good comedy role for a change. He'll get it in this original comedy, which will also be Nunnally Johnson's first as a producer for Goetz's international company. However, it won't roll until next year because, and this is more news, Gary is going overseas soon to entertain our service boys abroad.

Eddie Cantor continues to amaze me. He is just as good an entertainer and just as much of a hit today as he was when he was the talk of New York in the "Ziegfeld Follies" years ago. This seems to be a Cantor year now. I hear about "Show Business," which he is producing at RKO, and "Thank Your Lucky Stars," Nancy Kelly has joined his cast, and for the first time sings and dances.

Jane Russell and her bridegroom, Bob Warfield (former football champion) are in town. Bob, who has been on leave, returned to Georgia, where he is stationed. But Jane is still here. The other night, at a party at Marcel La Maza's new night club, she said much as she loved Hollywood she isn't thinking of staying here very long because she wants to be near Bob as long as he is in this country. Perhaps Howard Hughes, who has her under contract, has other ideas since he is talking over going back into movie production full blast.

A Line or Two: The poor innocent guy (an unknown) who made the mistake of wearing a bow tie to the premiere of "Behind the Rising Sun," will never do that again. One of the slick chicks tackled him yelling, "Frankie, Frankie—my own Frankie Sinatra!" and scared the gent almost to death.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected at Random: Ava Gardner's first dinner late in Hollywood after her divorce from Mickey Rooney was with Lieutenant John Carroll at the Mocambo. Marjorie De Haven, sister of Gloria and daughter of Carter, sitting in a quiet corner of the Savoy with Lew Wertheimer; Al Kessel, assistant director at Warners, passed out cigars to celebrate the arrival of a nine-pound boy; Sophie Tucker was gifted with a diamond and ruby watch on her last night at the Florentine Gardens; Lana Turner and Steve Crane dancing cheek to cheek at Marcel La Maza's Virginia (Party-Giving) Hill entertained eight guests (among them her rival party thrower, Rex St. Cyr) at the same spot; Tommie's debut at the Troadero is being watched with interest by bookers, who were there the first night; the old Frank Borzage mansion may be rented by the N. A. A. to house the boys who have no place to sleep—marvelous cause! Ann Lehr, who is doing a magnificent job feeding and providing beds to the service men, needs financial aid. A check, however small, is welcome and may be the means of keeping some service man from walking the streets all night; the Bill Terrys ("Stage Door Canteen") expect their first baby in November; Arthur Patrick Lake, aged six and one-half months, had all the girls in a dither at the birthday party given by the Ken Murrays for their little daughter. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Sept. 15.—One of the beauties of Australia at this time of the year is the wattle, a graceful yellow flower which grows on a bush or small tree and makes the countryside very colorful. Violets are everywhere, too, for this is spring, though in the United States you may not realize it.

The native tree here is the gum tree. There are many varieties. I was told, and it is a good hard wood. Some varieties of pine are also in evidence, and one old vine one could be seen from my window at Government house in Canberra. There are other species of trees, largely imported. This is the largest island in the world and has much undeveloped land. I gather that they are desirous of increasing their population after the war, if they can choose desirable immigrants.

At present 86 per cent of the people living in the commonwealth are Australian born, and 97 per cent of the total population of over 6,750,000 are of British stock. Our boys seem to have made a good impression for I have been asked twice whether I thought that after the war many would come back to settle here.

This may, of course, be due to the fact that a number of Australian girls have married our soldiers, and Australia may want to keep its girls at home. I was reading a book last night about "Certain Worthy Women," by Marie Irvine. It tells the story of some pioneer women, who, in every country, play a great role. It amused me to find that the first is a Mrs. McArthur, who later changed the spelling of her name to MacArthur.

Now, that name is again intimately connected with Australian history, so it should never be forgotten. Lady Gowrie also gave me a very delightful book, written for children, "The Way of the Whirlwind," by Mary and Elizabeth Durack. The illustrations are in color and the drawings are beautifully done. The stories are interesting to grownups as well as to children.

I found, in New Zealand, that laws have already been passed covering certain plans for returning soldiers. For instance, they are to be paid by the government while they finish their education along lines started before the war, or they may obtain other training at government expense, if they so desire. They may obtain loans at a low interest rate to start a business of their own, or to build a home, or to buy and stock a farm.

In Australia I was told that the laws passed after the last war would take care of most of the points covered in New Zealand's plans, though certain amendments and expansions of the former plans might be necessary. On the whole, it seems to me they are further along in concrete planning than we are, probably because in the last war, more of their men were affected in proportion to the total population, than was the case with us.

We have flown over snow-capped mountains with green valleys below us and I have seen one big dam, forests, streams and cultivated fields. However, this is still a country of wide open spaces. There is plenty of room for the cattle and sheep which are raised here in such great quantities.

Rationing of certain commodities is in force, some price ceilings have been set, but their greatest hardship must be the restrictions on the use of gas. The average person gets four gallons per month, and in view of the scattered population, that must mean a real hardship in many cases. There are also restrictions on household service, no one may employ more than one person in the capacity of a houseworker.

Truly fine jewelry is being shown and bought these days, when we're witnessing a revival of interest in things substantial. A matching set, necklace, pin and bracelet from the collection of a collector and designer of modern and antique jewelry is pictured. These pieces are made of large oval Russian amethysts and gold. The necklace is a gold festooned yoke, set with two sizes of the amethysts. The shower pin is fashioned of the pear-shaped stones in a draped gold design. Two amethysts set in the center of double links form the bracelet. Antique gold clasps fasten these lovely pieces. The necklace is $500; the pin, $195, and the bracelet, $165. Mrs. Hubert Vaughn is the model.

Vitamins Lack Health Value of Food

By Ida Jean Kain.

A good many nutritionists—I am among them—almost whisper whenever they talk about vitamin concentrates. American ingenuity runs so to short cuts that we are afraid you might be tempted to take a vitamin in lieu of the right food.

Any day you skip breakfast, grab a sandwich for lunch and don't do too well by yourself nutritionally at dinner, then pop a vitamin pill into your mouth with the idea of making up for it all you are that much closer to malnutrition. The scientists are madest people. They freely admit nature knows more than they do and will tell you there are many factors in food that have not been put into concentrates.

Even the entire list of vitamin concentrates is no cure-all. What you want first is an adequate diet—a diet that meets your needs. The recommended allowances of the food essentials are based on the normal needs of the individual. There may be some reason why you need more of a particular vitamin. In that case, the concentrates are of inestimable value.

It is possible that you need more than the usual amounts of vitamin A. If you are always catching colds and invariably have one in the fall see if you can't ward it off by taking extra amounts of vitamins A and D in concentrated form. You can get these two vitamins in halibut oil, cod liver oil, and in their concentrates. Of course, you need the food sources, too. You should have a green, leafy or yellow vegetable, an egg, and two glasses of whole milk every day. Besides vitamins, these foods furnish minerals and protein. If you eat the foods rich in the vitamins, then take the concentrates for A and D, your build up a safety margin that should protect you. Needless to say, you can't sit around in a draft, or with damp feet, or get overly tired, or you will still catch cold, vitamins or no.

Most diets are low in the B vitamins, the ones so important to steady nerves and good muscle tone. The natural food that is highest in the B vitamins is yeast—not baker's moist yeast, but dried brewer's yeast, either in powdered form or in the B complex concentrate. Because of their effect on muscle tone, the B vitamins are very important to proper elimination. They help the muscles to function as they were intended to. Other good food sources are whole grain and enriched bread and cereals, milk, the meat organs, and green vegetables.

You are assured of having enough vitamin C in your diet by including a citrus fruit like orange juice or grapefruit juice, or tomatoes. You need one or the other every day, plus some other raw food. Cooking destroys this vitamin. Be sure you get it daily for it is necessary to a high level of positive health.

The "Count Your Vitamins" Chart lists all the important foods and the vitamins they furnish. Send large, stamped return envelope for the chart, enclosing 3 cents in stamps or coin to cover cost of handling.

Trim Dirndl-Skirt Looks Neat, Fresh

Young and captivating as the twinkle in her eye is this dainty dirndl-skirted frock, Pattern 4551. Stitch it up in a fresh looking plaid or checked gingham—add the pert bow. Mystery Play Stars Bogart

Dashiell Hammett's mystery thriller, "The Maltese Falcon," will be tonight's "Screen Guild" presentation, from WGST at 9 p. m. Starred in the broadcast will be Humphrey Bogart, Mary Astor, Sydney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre, who recreate their roles of the movie version.

Nero Wolfe faces the problem of finding his assistant Archie's missing mind and, more important, of finding Archie himself during tonight's adventure, from WAGA at 7:30 p. m. Entitled, "The Case of the Missing Mind," tonight's story finds the over-sized sleuth unraveling a seething sabotage plot, which brings danger uncomfortable close.

In their first war bond appearance in the new drive, "Information, Please" experts will be joined by Congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce when they broadcast from Baltimore through WSB at 9 p. m. tonight. Mrs. Luce will appear in addition to regulars John Kieran, Franklin P. Adams and Oscar Levant. During their current tour, the group hopes to add a sizable amount to the $27,415,240 in war bonds they have helped sell.

SPARKS—During the "Case of the Guilty Wife," David Harding discovers the relation between a woman shearing her own head and a mess of international intrigue, during tonight's "Counter-spy" (WAGA at 8 p. m.). . . . Parks Johnson and Warren Hull chat with paratroopers, air-borne infantry, tow pilots, glider pilots and engineers during "Vox Pop" (WGST at 7 p. m.). . . . Lily Pons makes her seventh guest appearance on the "Guest Artist Series" (WSB at 8 p. m.). . . . Dorothy Lamour, bent on selling war bonds, visits the Bumsteeds during this evening's episode (WGST at 9:30 p. m.). . . . Joseph E. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, appears on tonight's "Spotlight Bands." Jack Teagarden's orchestra will play from Shreveport (WAGA at 8:30 p. m.). . . . Rosalind Russell recreates her starring role in "Flight for Freedom" for the "Radio Theater" (WGST at 8 p. m.). . . . "Awake at the Switch," new comedy program, features John Brown, emcee; Sidney Fields, Patsy Flick and Danny Shapiro (WAGA at 6 p. m.).

Health Quiz

By Dr. William Brady.

You said you know of no substitute for quinine. In New Jersey years ago I suffered with malaria, and never used quinine, for either the oil or fluid extract of eucalyptus always cured it. With the millions of eucalyptus trees in California it would seem that some use should be made of this—as was done in the last war, by our soldiers overseas. (T. P. F.)

Answer—It is news to me that any such use was made of eucalyptus in the last war. Formerly eucalyptus was used in medicine as an "antiperiodic," but I can find no clinical evidence that it has any real value against malaria. I did not say I know of no substitute for quinine. I said I know of no substitute for quinine against the crl. Atabrine is a fairly efficient substitute for quinine against malaria.

Meat. Are there any reliable statistics to show that eating pork or any meat commonly used as food is harmful to health? (Rev. A. F. G.)

Answer—I know of none. In my opinion there is no truth in that notion.

New Church Home Is Considered

It was announced at the meeting of the directors of the Churches Homes for Girls, held recently at the Allie Callaway Home, that 382 girls had stayed in the six units during the past month. With 42 applications on the waiting list, the directors took into serious consideration the opening of a new home in the near future.

Mrs. D. F. Fitzgerald presided in the absence of John A. Manget, president. Josiah T. Rose explained the financial conditions of the homes, and J. T. Reisman outlined the little pamphlet which will soon be issued. This proposed pamphlet will not only feature pictures of the homes, but will tell of the good work being done by the Churches Homes.

Six girls in the homes have been married during the past month, and preceding each wedding the other home girls honored the brides-elect with showers.

The girls in the homes give monthly parties to service men, and buy war bonds and stamps. The recreational activities include wicker roasts, old-fashioned dances, and games.

The women directors of the home will hold a special meeting this week, when Mrs. Claude C. Smith, life vice president, who has been ill, will be honor guest.

Miss Wood Weds Staff Sgt. Postle

SMYRNA, Ga., Sept. 19.—The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Marcella Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Luther Wood, of Smyrna, and Staff Sergeant Paul W. Postle, of Cochran Field in Macon, and Columbus, Ohio, was solemnized at 8 p. m. on September 10 at Locust Grove Baptist church in Smyrna. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Luther B. Sauls. The church was decorated with palms and baskets of white chrysanthemums. The candles were lighted by little Miss Peggy Jo Addison, who wore a pale blue organza dress and a halo of pale hued flowers. Mrs. Horace Mulkey sang, accompanied by Mrs. Glenn Brown.

The ushers were Robert W. Wood, brother of the bride, and Donald Sauls. Forrest A. Morrison, of Macon, was groomsmen. The best man was Sergeant Philip Vaneck, of Cochran Field and New York City.

Mrs. Forrest A. Morrison, of Macon, was matron of honor and wore a gown of pale blue net and lace, trimmed in pink, and a small net cap trimmed in pink. Miss Jeffie Mae Asbell, of Macon, was bridesmaid and wore a pale pink net and lace gown trimmed in blue, and a small net cap trimmed in blue. They carried white chrysanthemums and tuberoses tied with pink and blue ribbon. Little Anna Katherine Addison was junior bridesmaid, and wore a pale green organza dress. She carried a small nosegay of mixed flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was lovely in her gown of ivory satin with yoke of lace. The gown had a sweetheart neckline and the sleeves came to a point over her hands. The fingertip veil was caught to a halo of white satin and orange blossoms. She carried a testament used by the groom during his service in the armed forces, which was covered with white satin and tuberoses.

Mrs. R. L. Wood, mother of the bride, and Mrs. E. D. Dunn, mother of the groom, wore dresses of black, and gladioli.

Out-of-town guests were Robert Postle and Herbert Cowan, of Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Dorris Dasher, Misses Gladys Morrison and Agnes Hancock, of Macon.

The bride traveled in a green gabardine suit with brown accessories. Her flowers were tuberoses. After a wedding trip, the couple returned to Macon, where the groom is stationed with the Army Air Forces at Cochran Field.

Atlanta Doctors at the Front Become War Correspondents

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Members of the Emory Medical Unit, now in one of the most widely publicized theaters of war, have assumed a new role.

They have become war correspondents! However, their news dispatches are not for publication, but for exchange among the wives left behind, who just last week began to receive the first news from their husbands at the front, via the fast V-mail service.

The story of how the medical men became war correspondents had its beginning when the unit was stationed in Alexandria, La., and the wives who had become "camp followers" formed a club which met twice monthly for luncheon and bridge at the Officers' Club at Camp Livingston. The club was entirely social in nature, and many friendships were formed between the Atlanta wives and the wives of other officers in uniform there. When orders came for the Emory Unit to embark for active duty, the wives returned to their homes for the duration. The Atlanta wives decided that they would continue their bi-monthly gatherings, and next Friday was scheduled as the date for the first luncheon.

Senior Hadassah Sponsors Fashion Show Wednesday

The Atlanta Chapter of Senior Hadassah announces as the highlight of this year's membership campaign a tea and fashion show in Rich's tearoom on Wednesday at 3:30 p. m.

Preceding the fashion show, a program will be presented by Mrs. Sol O. Klotz, program chairman. The cast includes Mesdames Frank Weitz, Louis Smith, Dave Alterman, Jack Bressler, Jake Bressler, Jake Friedman and daughter, Charlotte; Sidney Goldstein and Martin Shaw. Mrs. Mackey Klein will accompany at the piano.

Mrs. J. M. Rosenfeld, general membership chairman, requests those who have not already registered to do so at the tea. Only paid-up members will be eligible for winning the $36 defense bond.

MRS. WILLIAM HERBERT GARVIN JR.

Mrs. Garvin, whose marriage was a recent event taking place at the Inman Park Baptist church, is the former Miss Sarah Elizabeth Cochran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Robert Cochran.

But circumstances alter cases, even in wartime, and last week when the wives began to receive mail from "over there," wires began to buzz as each passed along the latest news from the unit. Friday was too long to wait for the exchange of letters, so a call meeting of the club was held during the past weekend at the Argonne drive residence of Mrs. Ira Ferguson, whose husband, Lieutenant Colonel Ferguson, is chief of surgery and unit director of the Emory group. V-mail letters received from their husbands were exchanged by the wives in order that all could glean as much news as possible from the "combined forces."

The Atlanta wives composing the club include Mesdames Ira Ferguson, Hugh Wood, Elbert Agnor, William B. Armstrong, M. K. Bailey, Joe Boland, Kella Boland, William Bryan, John Tye III, J. D. Martin Jr., Merrill Monford, Francis Parker, Charles Stone, William Trimble, Harry Crosswell, Julius Hughes, Russell Burke, J. W. Chambers, Sterling Claiborne, John Gages, Harry Gibson, Robert Gillespie, Eugene Hawk, Harry Lange and A. O. Linch.

Prizes Awarded At Garden Center

The Camellia Garden Club won first prize in the recent competition for "Summer Arrangements" at the Garden Center. The club's high score was 559 points out of a possible 600, and the exhibit included arrangements of usual summer flowers from the members' gardens. A handsome spray of what petunias grown from seed was displayed as a horticultural specimen.

The second prize was awarded to the Azalia Garden Club with 555 points, the members having combined interesting plant material in their arrangements. The horticultural specimen was a single dahlia.

The Club Estates Garden Club won third prize in the competition with a score of 423 points. Good color harmony characterized the compositions of summer blossoms and foliage.

Beautiful flower arrangements are featured in the Garden Center each week by a different garden club and are a source of interest and inspiration to flower lovers.

The music will be presented by Mrs. J. A. Wilson, organist, and Miss Mildred Butler, soloist. Miss Hatcher, who will be given in marriage by her father, has chosen Mrs. Clinton F. Griffin Jr., the former Kitty Mae McCarty, as her matron of honor and only attendant. The bridegroom-elect has chosen Rev. Frank H. Prince as best man, and ushers will be Sergeant Billy S. Smith and Bernard F. Swafford, USN.

Miss Hatcher is being extensively entertained at a series of parties. A kitchen shower was given by Mrs. Charles Montgomery and Mrs. C. P. Lamb.

Miss Hatcher on Tuesday at a lingerie shower at the home of her mother on Waverly way. On September 25, Miss Mildred Butler will compliment the bride-elect at a luncheon and linen shower. That afternoon Mrs. J. G. Ammons and Miss Mary Penick will entertain at a miscellaneous shower.

Mrs. Alma M. Cobb will entertain the bridal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McKown on Virginia avenue on October 1, after the wedding rehearsal.

Service Club Meets

Mrs. Ola Durden will be hostess to the Service Club of Mary E. La Roca Grove, Supreme Forest, to Elbert Augustus Gay, of New York city, formerly of Atlanta. The wedding took place in New York at the Madison Avenue Baptist church on August 28, with Dr. George Caleb Moor officiating.

Mrs. Walter Lee, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, and Walter W. Lee was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Gay will reside in New York city. Mr. Gay is the son of Mrs. Pearl Moxley Gay and the late Sanford Whatley Gay, both of Atlanta.

Heart Trouble Now Menacing 'Penicillin Kid'

Atlanta's "penicillin child," Barbara Gallimore, now is battling a heart condition, Grady hospital doctors reported yesterday.

An infection of her throat was overcome as physicians administered penicillin delivered here by plane after The Constitution contacted officials in Boston and arranged its delivery.

The heart condition, the doctors said, is an after-development of the throat infection. Barbara, admitted to Grady August 31, will remain at Grady until she is completely out of danger.

The six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Gallimore, of a "uth street, N. W., address, is able to sit up in bed, pass time reading and coloring in picture books brought her by friends, despite the new trouble.

Three East Point Women Injured as Car Skids

Three East Point women were painfully injured last night when their car skidded off the wet highway from Atlanta to Roswell.

Miss Inez Ekblom, 50; Miss Mae Carmichael, 40, and Miss Irma Carmichael, all of 119 Ware avenue, East Point, were given emergency treatment for cuts and bruises at Grady hospital and later were taken to Emory hospital.

A Roswell ambulance bringing the victims to Atlanta stalled after it reached the city and a Grady ambulance finished the trip.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 20, 1943.

A Sound Proposal

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, president and general manager of Eastern Airlines, has urged American industry to reinvest all the cash it can raise in a postwar program of development for the purpose of averting any temporary depression caused by the change-over from war to peacetime industry.

Speaking before the Civil Aeronautics Board, Rickenbacker said his company would be willing to "declare a moratorium on earnings or dividends for a period of three years after the war is over, by investing not only our present cash reserve, but all the millions we can borrow, in a sound and sane program."

Undoubtedly the postwar period will offer not only the greatest test, but the greatest opportunity in history to American industry and business. It will be a time when courage and faith will be demanded of all business, a time in which prosperity and full employment will depend on the way in which American business meets the challenge.

Regardless of what help to bridge the economic gap can be forthcoming from a government faced with the gigantic deficit of war, the great burden of salvation for American economy will fall upon private enterprise. If this were not so, the American way of life, the American idea, would be doomed.

If, by such programs as that outlined by Captain Rickenbacker, the American people can continue enjoyment of full employment, if the change from war manufacture to peace industry can be made without hardship, undoubtedly the owners of stocks in such industries as his will be willing to forego dividends for a few years. Only, however, if by such foregoing they can see a more secure and more prosperous future than would otherwise be possible.

A lady plumber is among the untoward consequences of the manpower shortage. Having to go back for the fingernail lacquer will be new.

China Will Stick to Allies

Hitler's greatest blunder in this war was the invasion of Russia; he realizes this now, but there is nothing he can do but take his punishment. Japan's big error was attacking the United States while still at war with China. Tojo and the Japanese war lords realize this now, and have made repeated offers of concessions to induce the Chinese to forsake the Allied Nations and join them in a racial war against the whites in Asia and the Pacific Islands.

In a recent interview Chinese Foreign Minister T. V. Soong said to reporters in Washington: "As the Allies exert more military pressure on the far-flung Japanese outposts of empire they are getting desperate. They are ready now to get out of China, except for Manchuria and Formosa, if we will go over to their side, but we will have nothing to do with them, and their offers are futile."

Half a century of aggression by the Japanese finally aroused the Chinese to the fact the Nipponese were gradually taking over Chinese territory, and if the nibbling was not ended the time would come when Japan would rule over all of China.

The Japanese began expanding over China after the Sino-Japanese war in 1894. Korea was annexed in 1910, and Manchuria in 1932. The border province of Jehol was cut off in 1933. Japanese troops went through the Great Wall in 1935 into the province of Chahar and the principal officers of Peiping and Tientsin and in Hopei and Chahar provinces were removed and replaced by Japanese leaders. In 1937 Japan set up a so-called independent government in Peiping, and in 1938 established a second regime called the provisional government of the republic. At the same time Japan set up two companies for the exploitation of Chinese resources.

Fighting finally broke out in 1937 and, though they have lost considerable more territory, the Chinese have fought the invaders with varying success. In 1942 she began the conscription of 6,000,000 able-bodied men to swell her fighting force to 26,000,000, and if she had manufacturing facilities to produce adequate planes and war materiel, or if importation of some could be had from her allies, there is no doubt that China would long ago have subdued the Japanese menace to the world.

Small wonder that China's plaint has been: "Send us planes and munitions."

The trend, says an oracle of the furniture trade, is decidedly to single beds. We were afraid of this when the pre-convention crowds got a look at their party bedfellows.

Power and Conservation

There is a somewhat strange situation existent in the electric power industry in the United States today.

The federal government has asked the people to exercise utmost conservation in the use of power. Similar request has been made in regard to other utilities, such as fuel, water, gas, telephones and telegraphs.

Yet, at least in the case of electricity, the need to conserve does not spring from any lack of capacity for the production of power. The companies, as a matter of fact, have so developed their facilities that there is no danger whatever of any interference with the war program for lack of electricity.

It is the materials which must be used in the production of electricity which are in danger of becoming scarce. The fuel and the oil which keeps the power plants in operation. The copper wire for transmission and other essential materials.

It is, therefore, to avert delays by shortages in such basic supplies that the people are asked to use as little electricity as possible. Recognizing that need, the power companies themselves, through advertising and direct contact, are pleading for reduced consumption of electricity, even though such reduction must inevitably lower their income and earnings.

So, whenever you can, turn out that unnecessary light in your home, don't let leaky faucets waste water; make windows and doors tight for the coming winter in order not to waste the coal or gas that heats your home. The saving in such essentials that each one can make may be infinitesimal, but the aggregate saving for the nation can be a worth-while contribution toward earlier victory.

"Pardon me," murmured the British Eighth Army, as it stepped on the toe of Italy—for it was just before the dawn, and like a darkened movie.

A New Command

To long-range weepers and pessimists who see nothing ahead but gloom for the post-war world comes an interesting refutation from no less an organization than the Army Air Force. This organization has a postwar plan that might well become the pattern for the other services. Its purpose? The reallocating of war veterans into civilian jobs.

A new command has been set up to receive the battle-seasoned men who will come back after hammering the Germans and the Japs. It is the first command of its kind in the United States and highly significant because it aims to do something constructive, something sensible. This command will receive these men, study them as individuals and send them to jobs for which they are best suited.

At present, naturally, these arrangements will be fighting jobs. But the command is looking forward to victory and is preparing to become the nucleus of demobilization machinery. It is a vast step forward from 1918, when soldiers were simply dumped back into civilian life.

In the democracy, there is no last word. In another 15 months, the "We" of "We, the People" can be a crowd of total strangers.

Pilots Dictate

The statement by General H. H. Arnold, head of the air forces, relative to "air battleships" stimulated the imagination. Now comes a new product from the minds of electrical engineers that adds to the stimulation. It is an invention that enables pilots to dictate their observations.

Like busy office executives, the American Air Force men on scouting trips over enemy territory can now dictate their observations instead of using the customary pad and pencil. The words of the fliers, spoken into a microphone, are caught by a new type of sound recorder.

Sixty-six minutes of continuous conversation can be recorded on 11,500 feet of hair-like steel wire on a spool no bigger than a doughnut. And the speech can be wiped off magnetically and the wire used again. Surely, American brains go forward in their quest for newer and bigger gadgets with which to beat the Axis.

Georgia Editors Say:

ATHLETES AND SERVICES
(From The Fitzgerald Herald)
Trained athletes seem to most people to represent the peak of physical perfection. They of all people should be the ideal Army type. However, things are not always what they seem. Johnny Vander Meer, the left-hander of the Cincinnati Reds, though he has not been doing so well lately, will always be remembered for his feat of pitching two no-hit games in succession. He has just been rejected by the Army on physical grounds.

Now comes Frankie Sinkwich, Georgia's sensational All-American halfback. He has been rejected by the Marine Corps training school at Parris Island, S. C., because he is "physically unqualified for the officers' candidate class." If a star football player does not have what it takes to be an officer, the customers might be less critical of our undrafted athletes. Because a man is playing professional baseball, it does not follow that he is a slacker.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WORST OF FALSE PROPHETS WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Lest the public be deceived, it is appropriate to review the record of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, who is currently setting himself up as an expert over our military leaders by sponsoring the bill to forbid the drafting of fathers.

No member of congress has a more infamous record than the Montana senator, an arch pre-Pearl Harbor isolationist, in the matter of national defense. If a majority of our national legislators had been half as blind as he is in appraising the danger of war events, our whole effort in the present conflict would have been set back for a minimum of two years. To have followed such false prophets as Wheeler has proved himself to be might easily have cost us the war. During the years before Pearl Harbor he was consistently wrong on practically every major proposal put forward by a wise-thinking national administration in the interest of national defense.

"Let's have a look at the record," as former Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, used to say in dealing with his misguided critics. From the standpoint of national defense, it is about as black as anything that could be produced. Back in the summer of 1940, for example, when the selective service act, the backbone of our present system of national defense, was first being considered, the Montana senator fought the legislation for all he was worth. France had just fallen, a half-dozen other European countries had been overrun by the Germans, and Hitler was battering at the gates of Britain.

ISOLATIONIST VAPORINGS And yet under those perilous times the senator, Senator Wheeler, expressed himself thus: "This talk about a crisis in this country ought to stop. The only crisis that exists is conjured up in the minds of people who are seeing a fifth columnist under every sageshrub in the country and by those who believe we must set up a dictatorship in this country to preserve democracy in Europe." Wheeler cast his vote against the selective service bill. In the same session he voted to repeal arms embargo provisions of the neutrality act, which would have given our nation a means of helping our allies. But for the aid we were able to give, Britain might have gone down. With Britain out of the way, Russia would have been an easier victim for Hitler.

A year later, on the very eve of Pearl Harbor, General Marshall, the army chief of staff, warned that "a grave national emergency exists." In the interest of national defense, he urged congress to remove the then existing restrictions on the time of service and field of the operations of the new army we were building.

IGNORANCE DISPLAYED Wheeler challenged the soundness of the chief of staff's judgment. Professing to know more about the needs of national defense than the army itself, he said the Marshall proposal "is going to materially injure the morale of the army." Fortunately for us the Marshall bill was voted over Wheeler's protest, or we might have been caught with an utterly disorganized army at the time the Japs struck at Pearl Harbor.

At the same session of congress Wheeler also voted against the lease-lend act, which has come to be our main bulwark against the enemies. Further exploitation of his record would probably show other offenses of equal magnitude. These should suffice to stamp him as a rank incompetent in the field of national defense, as wholly lacking in any capacity for measuring the true weight of world events. Like other isolationists of his ilk, some years ago he stuck his head, ostrich like, in the sands and he has never succeeded completely in getting the dust from his eyes.

For Senator Wheeler, in the light of his sorry record, to now project himself as the champion of our respected military leaders in determining the needs of our war effort is utterly ridiculous. HAVE BEEN MISTAKES None of this is to say that a certain amount of mismanagement may not have crept into the whole manpower question. Undoubtedly there have been mistakes, just as there have been in other spheres of government action. You can't manage a two hundred billion dollar war without making mistakes along the line. But if mistakes have been made, let the corrections be proposed by someone who is better qualified as an expert than the Johnny-ever-wrong senator from Montana. He qualifies as an expert in only one thing—the art of being wrong.

For him now to come forward as the sponsor of the controversial bill to forbid the drafting of fathers is enough to damn whatever merit there is in the proposal. Wheeler's sponsorship of any war or postwar measure should be the kiss of death.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Pack 'Em Properly.

You would think, wouldn't you, anyone sending a package, say for Christmas, to someone in the Army overseas would know enough to realize such a package must be well and securely packed. But, believe me, some of them don't.

Such a package has to be tossed around in sacks of mail, not only in this country, but for thousands of miles in the hold of some ship. It has to be handled by all types of workers and, perhaps, has to be opened for inspection by the censor.

Yet, if you will stand at the postoffice for a little while, you'll see some of the most absurdly packed bundles, addressed to some A. P. O. number, handed in. Just something or other screwed up in a piece of brown wrapping paper with perhaps one piece of string tied insecurely around it.

You should get a box, pasteboard will do, pack your gifts so they fit—don't let 'em bulge out, because that is just asking for destruction—and wrap and tie it up with stout string as solidly and securely as you know how. If you want to send more than will go in a box of the regulation dimensions, get another box and make a second package.

You can buy proper pasteboard boxes, already for packing and fastening, at many of the stores. Boxes that are the right size as specified by the Army postoffice itself.

Letter From A Soldier's Wife.

It is violating an important rule to publish an anonymous letter. However, this time one such epistle is now going to be published here. Simply because it expresses a new angle on this question of drafting fathers for the armed services.

And please understand I don't intend to start any warfare between mothers and wives without children. I'm just presenting it for the sake of the thoughts expressed which are certainly worthy of consideration.

The letter is only signed, "A childless wife who has a husband in the service." Here it is:

"The issue causing the most concern today is the drafting of fathers. The mothers, and daddies too, are becoming frantic today, though they have sat all through the process of drafting others with a complacent attitude and pointed accusing fingers at the throngs of fatherless men who failed to wear a uniform.

"Who are these super-special women who are mothers? By what reason do they figure their place is at the top of the list? What of the thousands of women who have not enjoyed the pleasure of loving childish arms around their neck, through no fault of their own? Women who would give half of life and a part of heaven to have just one. Women who have wept bitter tears and suffered inward agony because of this strange fate that stalks the ranks of femininity, touching the ones who would, in all probability, make the best mothers.

"Sure, 'It's Okay.'"

"The attitude of the mothers in regard to the draft would seem to indicate that a woman who has no children is not only incapable of human emotions, but lacks the physical and mental build-up of a real human. 'Sure, it's okay to let her husband go to war to build a new nation for my child, for his wife can make it swell on the 50 dollars a month the government pays here she can work and earn more if necessary.'"

"Let me tell you I have seen too much. I feel that it is punishment enough for a woman to go through life a childless wife, with a man whom she adores, a man who loves and wants children, to justify that woman to have an equal break with more fortunate women who enjoy the pleasures of husband and children.

"They also are eliminated from the responsibilities of war when it is their children, rather than our husbands, who will benefit by a 'new world' more than any of us."

"I say, as I have heard many fatherless men say, that had I any children to fight for I would be ashamed to sit back and let the other fellow do it."

There It Is.

There is the letter. I'm not saying that I agree with it all. But it does present a viewpoint that, in all the argument on the issue, has been somewhat overlooked. And, therefore, it is worthy of consideration.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Basic English NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Mr. Churchill may have something in his basic-English language of 800 words, even though expression would be bleak and stilted and might cause serious nervous disorders in some of us to whom English or American is the mother tongue. As I understand it, this would be unlike the Frenchman's way of speaking English in his early efforts, as when he wants to say that someone kicked someone in the pants and it comes out that the party of the first part made a blow of the foot to the pantalons. However, that would suffice and, on the base of the 800 words the other peoples, if they would be so kind, could build more elaborate vocabularies, ornamented with bywords and slang. If the whole world knew basic English we could at least understand each other.

But, would we? I am thinking of one word that has been the subject of many orations, books and tracts and the cause of many bitter, personal hatreds and fights, which has many meanings in a nation, meaning our own, which nevertheless reveres it.

The word is democracy.

Some Meanings This means, according to Webster, a government in which the people exercise the supreme power through a system of delegated authority, periodically renewed. And that means that if a majority of the people make a decision, that decision is binding on the minority, even though the majority should vote democracy out of existence or vote away all rights of a minority. Literally it does mean that if the people of the United States were to divide on strict racial lines and the whites were to vote to rescind the citizenship of the colored brothers, that would be a legitimate and virtuous exercise of the faith by which we profess to want to live.

The Communists call their one-party system and the dictatorship of one man twentieth century democracy and the far-fetched theory that Joseph Stalin is the people's choice, freely elected by representatives of the Russian people, to exercise authority in their name, during their pleasure. And Henry Wallace has introduced some novelties which he calls intellectual democracy, economic democracy and sexual democracy.

Our own standard concept of democracy is somewhat more specific than the broad definition being reinforced by the Bill of Rights and other amendments, but Mr. Wallace has said that he doesn't altogether care for the Bill of Rights which operates as a system of baffles to prevent impulsive decisions that might seem attractive to a majority at a given moment but might have the effect of abolishing democracy altogether.

Severe Fright In California only a few years ago they had a close call and a severe fright in a referendum on a Communist domination and by the more candid Communists. Disguised as a system of old-age pensions, it was in unmistakable effect, once you took the care to analyze it, a proposal to nullify our constitution, change the constitutions of the nation and the state, to confiscate all property and to elect a dictator (named in the proposition on the ballot) and empower him to name his own successor.

The Communists and many discouraged and needy Americans who deeply believe they loved our form of government, cried "Democracy! Majority rule!" in defense of the proposal and there was no denying that they were on good ground. If the majority voted to do these things in a regular election, that was their right in a pure democracy. If they voted to open the vaults of all the banks at high noon on a certain day and toss the money up for grabs from the roofs, that would be the people's will.

The big business interests and the home owners and farm owners and the conservative citizens of the middle class were really frightened and don't let anyone tell you they weren't. Money was raised somewhere and a strong counter-propaganda was started to get out the vote of the apathetic element to vote representative, popular government and the economic system of capitalism in California and, on election day, ham 'n' eggs was defeated by no more than 3 or 2 or thereabouts, a very close call. But for that campaign, ham 'n' eggs probably would have won; so you might say that the money interests, the property class, stood off dictatorship and preserved the American system of government against the threat of democracy. But a Communist could say, and I could not dispute him, that if the majority had voted a dictator into power and voted to abandon permanently their popular right to depose him, that would have been a classical operation of the democratic process.

ed house if we keep it not in repair. If we bolster it not with faith, hope, charity, our failure is rarely failure of vision but failure to follow the gleam when it illumines the way we should go.

Thy mercy upon us, Father, that knowing the truth, we espouse it not. Come what may, keep us alert to Thy holy purposes, courageous to achieve them.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

A WARDEN COMES IN This man came in Saturday and introduced himself. He was a guard in administrations.

"I had an idea I was one of those you referred to as a vicious product of the prison system because I had served in one, and I wanted to talk about it," he said. "I don't want any publicity because it wouldn't do me any good."

"How about using it without identifying you?"

"All right," he said. "Go ahead."

So we talked. "When I went in things were bad, worse than they are now," he said. "The men wore chains and were chained to the bed at night. As the men came in at night the warden stood there and hit each man over the head with the heavy end of the leather. That hurt. And it made men afraid. That's what I wanted. I would have liked to know him and I liked him. He didn't know any better. I went to see him just before he died and I was sorry for him, but I kept thinking to myself, 'Man, I hope you've prayed a lot.'"

"Things are better now, but I'll admit some places are mighty bad. I took over one camp at—Georgia, and I ordered the men to be allowed to bathe. I was shocked at the scars and the bruises on them. They were making those men spend all day Sunday in bed and if one had to get up and go to the bathroom he had to holler out, 'Gettin' up' before he raised his head. I stopped that. I used to let them gamble in the yard to keep them quiet. I never believed in the picks on a man's leg. They will make a place fester and give him blood poisoning. Some men, though, will take a penny and put it on a place and make it poison. But I never used the leather. I had guards quit because I took the part of the prisoners. I remember once I saw a nigger that had his finger nails split open and his hand swelled. I asked him about it and he told me a guard hit him with a stick. I asked the guard and he said he did because the nigger cursed him and I told him he was wrong because he had slipped up behind the nigger to hear him cuss. He said if I was taking the nigger's part he would quit and he did.

"I never believed in that sort of thing and never allowed it."

"THE TYPE OF GUARD" I asked him what he thought could be done to improve the prison situation.

"Well," he said, "I don't know. From experience I can say that you can't get much of a guard for $40 and $50 a month. The prisoners almost always turn out to be smarter than that type guard.

"Some of the wardens are that same type. I've known wardens who loved the job just because they could carry a gun and be called 'Cap'n' or 'The Man' or 'Boss Man.' I remember a warden who'd have the men whipped who didn't take off their hats and shout, 'Hello, Cap'n' when he rode up.

"You take the old sheriff-type warden and all he knows is to be tough and mean and to keep prisoners afraid of him. That's one thing that is wrong.

"I think things still are bad at Tattall. No, I don't know any reason why they shouldn't make things down there for the prisoners to wear. They could make clothes and shoes and supply all the state institutions and they could make the chemicals that are used at the state institutions and state buildings.

"But, let me tell you this. That job requires a good education and training. And I'd say the longer a man had served as warden the less recommendation he had for that job at Tattall. No man with a fourth-grade education can do it. And while I never will have anything to do with it, I wouldn't hire any man who'd been a warden for that job.

"They ought not to put leg picks on a man. That's a confession from the warden and guards that they can't do their job of watching. I think all prisoners ought to be kept busy. That helps. But I don't know what I'd advise about the problem. I wanted to come by and see you and talk about it because I figured I was one of those you said was vicious."

Well, he was. I did think so. I don't think so now. I was wrong on him. He is not vicious.

THE SYSTEM He confirms, however, that things are bad in many of the prisons and that beatings and cruelty are practiced as the investigating committees have found and reported during the past week.

The prisoners whose scarred bodies shocked him were those in a camp under a warden recently investigated for beatings. He put his finger on the weak point in the system. Tattall prison, a million-dollar institution, has been left to men incompetent to administer it. Its machinery for making things for use in state institutions was sold off by politicians who thought election to office made them the actual proprietors of the state and its property. It has never had at its head a man trained to manage what is a million-dollar administrative job.

He put his finger on another weak spot when he said, as others have done, that the guard system is bad. We have had too many highway camps where men were starved to make money. Some of the county camps are good. Most of them are not. Some of them starved men to make money. Roads ought to be built by free labor and contractors in private business. They do it cheaper than the convict way and there also is some responsibility present. We don't need any more highway camps.

We don't need any more guards who will work for $40 a month just to hold a gun in their hands, be able to order men whipped, and insist on being called "The Man," or "Cap'n."

It's a cheap ego. But it costs too much.

The Thief Can't Enter Undetected If the Watchdog Is Awake

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

There is a newspaper creed—an attitude toward the job—which I learned as a kid, for I grew up in a small-town newspaper office in the last days of the era of "personal journalism"—when Murat Hated was teaching the trade, and a newspaper was made great and famous by the character, genius and crusading zeal of one man. William Allen White, of the Emporia Gazette, is about the last leaf on that tree.

The creed is something like this.

A newspaper is not a mere private enterprise but a kind of public institution, and those who produce it, though paid by private enterprise, are ex officio servants of the public.

If a newspaper did no more than print the news, completely and accurately and without bias, it would render a great and necessary service. But readers who wish to be fully informed require something more.

The full significance of the news may not be apparent unless some competent person interprets and analyzes it and gives its background and tells why it happened and what the probable result will be. This is the job of the editorial page, and America has a lot of them that are distinguished and truly enlightening.

The editor "knows everything"—which means that he knows which people and books to consult in order to get the facts.

The commentator, whatever his title, is no smarter or better educated than his readers, but he is a specialist whose job it is to provide information. It is his business to know—and he'd better be right.

The doctor may not be more intelligent or have greater knowledge than his patients, but he knows the science of healing, which they do not, and they go to him because it is cheaper and easier than learning how to doctor themselves.

As the big businessman says to his secretary, "Get me all available information concerning this matter, and the data I'll need to reach a decision," so the reader says to his newspaper: "Give me the news and tell me the why and wherefore of it. I am too busy at my own trade to dig up this information, and it is your job to supply it—and make it plain and snappy."

That is the kind of free press which Jefferson believed more important than government itself. It informs. It reveals facts and reveals their significance. Only when it fails—as all human institutions do at times—only then can a great catastrophe come upon us before we realize what is happening.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"Quit referring to yourself as 'Mother's little helper!'"

Dudley Glass

Story from Washington says a telegraph message boy tried to deliver a message to somebody in the War Department and when he found his way into the fresh air, he found he had been made a lieutenant colonel.

Then there's the story about the girl's uncle who died because the current was too strong for him.

"Couldn't he swim?" inquired her date.

"Not in that electric chair," she explained.

Well, if you don't care for either of those, maybe I can tell about—now, let's see. Oh, yes:

Abraham Lincoln—you know about him, of course. Used to split rails. For rail fences. What I mean, he split logs to make rails. A log would make so many rails.

What I'm leading up to is that to split rails you use a maul. A maul is a big heavy mallet with a handle on it.

Don't get impatient. I'll be through in a minute.

Anyway, the way I hear it, Lincoln made the first pun on record.

And I hope you get it. Turn off that radio, Geraldine, and listen.

Abraham Lincoln was splitting rails with his maul and his boss came along and asked:

"Abe, how are you feeling?"

And Lincoln—not dreaming he'd be President some day—responded:

"I feel I'm maul right."

This anecdote was not published until after election day. Otherwise I'm afraid Lincoln would not have been President.

Special Editions

Dalton Citizen has published its Recognition Edition, devoted to the war theme, with emphasis on the Third War Loan Drive.

Pages about the men and women in the armed services. That's an achievement—and it means many hours of hard work for Editor Jennings Whitener and his staff.

At the same time Mrs. B. H. Howard doubled the size of her Dawson County Advertiser, published at Dawsonville, where the roads fork to Tate and Dahlonega and Amicolola Falls. Dawsonville is off the railroad, has no telephone facilities—and until a short time ago hadn't even a telephone.

But Mrs. Howard, who took over from her father the paper founded in 1878, has been running it for years—and evidently making it pay.

I haven't seen any statistics on retail sales of shops catering to women but my eyes tell me women are shopping—in thousands.

It's an old gag that a woman can spend a happy day shopping with 65 cents and a couple of car tokens and buy nothing. But I don't believe that. My wife can't. She demands cash money. Occasionally she gets it.

Whitehall and Broad streets and uptown around Peachtree and Ellis look like the week before Christmas. The Boy Scout traffic cops should be on the job.

Looks like folks have got money to spend. True, I haven't, but a lot of people have. Unless they're just window shopping, and I don't believe that. Too many of them are lugging packages home. I see them on the streets and on my homebound bus.

Gallup Poll Reveals:

Dewey, Willkie, MacArthur

Republican Presidential Bets

By GEORGE GALLUP.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 19.—Although the race for the Republican presidential nomination next year continues to be a wide-open affair with no one candidate as yet holding the support of a clear majority, Thomas E. Dewey, Wendell L. Willkie, and General Douglas MacArthur are the three top favorites with the rank and file of Republicans at this time.

The latest check-up of Republican rank and file sentiment was completed by the Institute just prior to the G. O. P. meeting at Mackinac Island, Mich., which gave wide publicity to many of the party's potential candidates. In making its survey, the Institute interviewed a true cross-section of voters who say they plan to vote Republican in next year's election. Each person was handed a card listing eight Republicans who have been most prominently mentioned as possible presidential candidates, and asked:

"Which of these men would you prefer as the Republican candidate for President next year?"

The vote follows:

Dewey 35%
Willkie 29%
MacArthur 15%
Bricker 8%
Taft 6%
Stassen 4%
Saltzman 2%
Warren 1%

For the present, Governor Dewey is the leading popular choice among Republicans polled in three sections of the country—the middle Atlantic, east central and west central states. These sections cast by far the largest number of Republican votes in elections.

Willkie holds the lead among Republican voters in four sections—New England, Rocky Mountain, Pacific coast and south.

General MacArthur's popular strength with the G. O. P. is evenly distributed throughout all sections, while Governor Bricker, of Ohio, gets most of his votes in the poll from the east central area, which includes his home state.

Life in Washington, Abe Lincoln's Pun And Now Where Are We?

Imbiber to blow off the suds and drain it down the old thirst pipe.

But the stein looks small and is marked "15 cents." Which is, in my opinion, something to be investigated. I don't know what the OPA says about it.

I realize that a war is on and prices are up and transportation a problem. I know that if this Cordele man feels like charging 15 cents for a mug of beer that's his business. Probably he has to, to meet the overhead.

But oldtimers can remember when a big glass of draft beer was a nickel. As standard as a street car fare—and that went up years ago. For a dime a thirsty customer could obtain a schooner it took both hands to lift. It contained about a quart of beer and on the end of the bar was an assortment of free lunch—and I mean free—which would be called smorgas-bord today and cost six bits.

But the price of beer is nothing to lie awake of nights about. Personally, I can go without beer, though it is nice to have in the home ice box. I have gone without beer for several months, for several reasons. It is the first step on the road to hell, it is calculated to add weight in undesired spots—and I haven't been able to find even half-a-dozen bottles within three miles of my house. And the gasoline situation being what it is, three miles is my limit.

Running short of corks out at your house?

Why not raise your own?

Thomas Jefferson did—for a while. And you're no bigger shot than T. J.

Letter from Clifton F. Schmidt Jr., of Baltimore, suggests cork raising (not extracting) is a pleasant and possibly profitable occupation. There's a publicity angle here, of course. Mr. Schmidt represents a huge corporation which manufactures corks and those thin cork linings inside bottle caps that hold the fizz in.

It appears that this company sponsors a project for growing cork trees in this country, providing the seedlings. However, Mr. Schmidt says they won't have any more seedlings until next year.

But he can furnish acorns.

Plant an acorn? Heck, that's too slow a business. When I want a cork I want it right now. Not in 1987.

Joke Calms Audience in Theater Fire

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP)—A pipe-shaft fire drove 1,400 calm and orderly playgoers out of the Shubert theater this afternoon—and gave Frank Fay, comedian of the show, "Laughtime," a chance to play his greatest role.

Although flames never were visible to the audience, many persons began to leave their seats because of the smell of smoke.

Fay walked onto the stage and asked them to be calm.

"I'm going on," he said. "Jobs are too hard to get to let anything interfere with this one."

Price Panels Set Up in All Dixie Counties

Establishment of at least one price panel in each of the 714 counties in the southeast region to aid in bringing compliance with price ceilings was announced here yesterday by James C. Derieux, regional administrator for the Office of Price Administration.

Derieux said the work of organizing the price panels in the fourth region (Alabama, Florida, Georgia, the Carolinas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Virginia) was nearing completion, putting the work of bringing about compliance with price ceilings in the hands of neighbors of the merchants. A total of 884 price panels have been set up in the area.

"The price panel is the finest concept of the OPA," Derieux declared. "It is truly putting the principles of democracy to work, it is basic democracy, necessary wartime enforcement of government regulations by neighbors."

Price panels consist of cross-section of community life, Derieux said, with from three to five members usually including a housewife or two, a representative of the merchants in the community, a professional member and a member for labor. All are volunteers and receive no pay for this work. In addition, there are price panel assistants, likewise unpaid.

Each price panel has a price clerk, either part or full time, who is paid, and serves as the office personnel of the panel.

Objectives of the price panel are fourfold: 1. Education; 2. Compliance; 3. Collection of Data; 4. Administration of price control activities in the community.

In the hands of these price panels, the OPA has placed the machinery to bring about compliance with price ceilings, to adjust complaints between the consumer and the merchant, and to enroll the entire community in a general observance of price regulations.

Editor, Constitution: In many places it is considered good form to criticize the President's wife, and we find Westbrook Pegler again using his vitriolic pen in disparaging Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Roosevelt has cast her influence for quite a few years, and if this influence is represented by the way our young men and women are meeting the problems of the day, it seems to me that it has not been harmful. So with due respect to Mr. Pegler, Mrs. Roosevelt has demonstrated that women are equal to men in tasks and in judgment and she has raised high the standard of womanhood as to their great possibilities. When we see women like Madame Chiang Kai-shek on the one hand and Mrs. Franklin D. True it is that Mrs. Roosevelt has made mistakes, but who is it who hasn't?

In her present trip she is doing an outstanding job; she is bringing hope and encouragement to many, and she will come back here with practical ideas that may be helpful not only to us here in the United States but not only to our boys, but in helping us build for a better future.

It's too bad that Mr. Pegler constantly throws his phobia against Mrs. Roosevelt, which is a reflection upon him and not upon the lady.

When we see women like Madame Chiang Kai-shek on the one hand and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt on the other, we cannot help but take a pride in their accomplishments and in their great forcefulness as well as their energy.

True it is that Mrs. Roosevelt has made mistakes, but who is it who hasn't?

In her present trip she is doing an outstanding job; she is bringing hope and encouragement to many, and she will come back here with practical ideas that may be helpful not only to us here in the United States but not only to our boys, but in helping us build for a better future.

It's too bad that Mr. Pegler constantly throws his phobia against Mrs. Roosevelt, which is a reflection upon him and not upon the lady.

First Congress Test of Foreign Policy Up Today

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP)—A Republican demand for reservations to the Fulbright "lasting peace" resolution when it comes up for a house vote tomorrow in the first congressional test of foreign policy sentiment.

With minority party representatives urging the insertion of language guaranteeing that congressional processes be observed in setting up any international machinery to preserve peace, Chairman Bloom, Democrat, New York, called the House Foreign Affairs Committee into a special session tomorrow morning.

Bloom said the language is acceptable to him and that if his fellow members agree it will be offered as a committee amendment to a proposal by Representative Fulbright, Democrat, Arkansas, already approved by the group. Leaders previously had said they hoped to pass it without change.

The Fulbright resolution proposes to put congress on record as favoring American participation in the creation of "appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace among the nations of the world."

The house will take it up under procedure which would require a two-thirds vote for its passage and would ban any but committee amendments.

Some Republicans previously had sought to open the bill to changes on the floor and Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, who headed the Republican advisory council committee which drafted a foreign policy statement at Mackinac Island (Mich.), said he did not believe the Fulbright proposal would be satisfactory to the senate in its present form.

"It could be made entirely satisfactory by the simple addition of a few assurances that America is to remain a sovereign nation and that her international commitments are to be made by constitutional process," he said.

The house Republicans proposed to add the words "without impairment of its constitutional processes."

This Phantom Peak Shows Why Staggered Hours Must Be Held

EVERY ATLANTA business and industrial firm is urged this fall and winter to keep the same working hours and the same opening and closing times it observed under the Staggered Hours program last year.

Unless the Staggered Hours plan is kept in full operation, Atlanta still faces a critical public transportation shortage in which many workers would lack the means of getting to and from their jobs.

This danger is illustrated in the chart. Horizontal sections of the heavy black line, as read against the scale at left, represent the number of trolley and bus passengers entering the downtown area by 15-minute periods in the morning rush hours. The broken line represents the volume of riding before Staggered Hours. The cross-hatched sections indicate the big increase in riding that the available vehicles have been able to accommodate under Staggered Hours. Note that the number of passengers in the maximum 15-minute period was greater before Staggered Hours than it is now.

The shaded area on top is the phantom peak. It represents the tremendously increased demand that would result if working hours were shifted back to the old schedules that were in effect before Staggered Hours. The maximum 15-minute interval would shoot up to more than 8,500 passengers from the present level of little more than 6,000 passengers.

It would be impossible for the available vehicles to provide adequate service under such circumstances. Cars and buses would be unbearably crowded. Many workers would be unable to get to their jobs on time. Transportation would be a critical problem.

This is not imagination. It is a condition from which Atlanta has been saved by Staggered Hours. But it is a condition that still can come about if the Staggered Hours plan is allowed to "slip."

Employees and their workers can help assure the continued effectiveness of the plan by keeping the same working hours they observed under Staggered Hours last year. Your cooperation is important!

IF YOUR WORK WEEK MUST BE EXTENDED—

Firms planning to adopt a longer work week in line with policies of the War Manpower Commission are urged to get in touch with the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce before making changes in working hours.

Such necessary modifications of working schedules can be worked out in cooperation with Staggered Hours provided both factors are taken into consideration at the same time. If the Chamber of Commerce is informed, the change can be made in a way that will give the needed extension of working hours while keeping Staggered Hours intact.

Special Satisfaction in Duce's Fall Noted by Haile Selassie

LONDON, Sept. 19.—(AP)—On the day that Italy surrendered, the Associated Press asked one of Fascism's greatest victims—Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia—to express his sentiments. His reply is the basis for the following dispatch:

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 17.—Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, today hailed the collapse of Italy as a bright signal that the overthrow of the other enemies of civilization was very near.

In a special statement for The Associated Press, the emperor whose country once was thrown to its knees by Italian conquerors, said there never could have been peace or justice in the world so long as Fascism endured.

The text of his statement:

"Two years after the defeat of the Italian armies in East Africa and five months after the end of the North African campaign Fascism has completely collapsed.

"Here in Ethiopia there is special satisfaction that the whole fabric of Mussolini's regime has crumbled.

"There never could have been peace or justice in the world so long that regime of force and brutality existed. That is why the defeat of Mussolini's government demands also the overthrow of Hitler's regime and Japan's tyranny.

"What has happened in Italy is an assurance that the overthrow of the other enemies of civilization is very near.

"Signed, HAILE SELASSIE, Emperor."

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Sherry Smith Here's an echo from the past . . . Men on service in foreign lands have written asking the whereabouts of Sherry Smith, of Mansfield, one of the great pitchers of other days in baseball.

I was stumped to give them much about his whereabouts or his record, as he had left Tattall and prison and, further, the record books ignore many of baseball's great oldtimers. (Sherry was a warden at Tattall, men.)

So, I wrote, in reply, that Sherry lost the longest world's series game on record to Babe Ruth, 2 to 1, and that I would let them know more soon as I could learn something.

And just the other day a letter arrived from Mrs. Smith, who is in Savannah with old Sherry. Mrs. Smith writes . . .

"Dear Mr. Troy: "Of course, Sherry does not have much to say as his records speak for themselves, but I wish to say thanks for the nice clipping I clipped out of The Constitution. I have my scrap book packed with clippings of the 'Jay-vees' we married back in '20, and I highly prize them as I even have Sherry's world's series game against Babe Ruth back in 1916. I already have several of yours and we appreciate very much all you have contributed. If any of my clippings can assist you any way just let me know.

"Sherry is now sergeant of the guard force at the Southeastern shipyard. He has grand and tall and the truth I wouldn't like for him to turn one loose with that left hand right now.

"So, again I say thanks and any time you are down this way be sure to look us up.

"Respectfully,

"MRS. SHERROD SMITH."

I agree with Mrs. Smith about old Sherry turning one loose with "that south paw" of his. While I never saw him pitch, I know by reputation that he had probably the greatest most to first base pitcher ever had and that he could find the plate with the best of them and with a lot of stuff attached to every ball that came flying up there.

Carolina's Ready Speaking of North Carolina, Georgia Tech's opponent Saturday in one of the finest opening games ever in the South, here is something of interest to Jacket followers. It is a press release from Chapel Hill . . .

"Although Carolina has had a varsity and a freshman eleven in the past, the yearlings have been absorbed by the veteran squad in the general war speed-up, and the Tarheels now have a varsity and a junior varsity, both with opening games set for September 25.

"The varsity will journey to Atlanta that day to try their hand with Georgia Tech, which is being rated as the powerhouse of the south, while the 'Jay-vees' will battle the strong Duke junior club in Greensboro.

"Head Coach Tom Young has divided up the Blue and White squad, and the top three elevens are working against time to get ready for the tricky, all-star Tornado, while the other men are now pointing their all to the test with the Duke reserves.

"Coach Bill Lange is in charge of the 'Jay-vees', assisted by Coaches Vernie Harkins and Lorin Buising, two first class specialists. Assistant Coach Young are Line Coach Grady Pritchard and Backfield Coach Henry House of the regular Carolina staff and Chief Specialist Jim Gill.

"The Carolina varsity will be able to take only 35 or 40 men on the long trip to Atlanta."

Well, sir, this ought to confirm all suspicions about Carolina.

Georgia Tech has a coaching staff of modest size and only enough players to keep around for ONE game. Imagine having such material that one can send teams off in all directions, like the mad horseman galloping away on his faithful steed.

Oh, well. Tech will be in there throwing and running Saturday and, as ever, an Alexander-coached team will do the best it can.

It Was the Mayor Several sportsmen have inquired lately as to who the commercial fisherman was who referred to the state of Georgia putting a "skull and crossbones" flag on commercial shrimping vessels.

The gentleman was the honorable Paul Plaeger, mayor of Darien. Obviously, he objected to many things about the program outlined by the Georgia wildlife commission. And among them was insisting that shrimping boats have licenses. Also that a tax be assessed for shrimp caught in sounds.

I happen to know, on the authority of Coast Guard friends, that the shrimpers have been fishing in the rivers as well as the sounds and are destroying the sport fishing.

This is the result of an injunction upheld by Judge Price. The judge is going to hear more about that later. And plenty. And so is Mayor Plaeger. He is going to hear plenty. He may only hear it from certain sport fishermen, but that will be enough.

I'll cast a vote for a judge on the Georgia coast, and give him 100 per cent endorsement.

The name of this judge is Donald Frazier, of Hinesville. He is for the state of Georgia, first, last and always. He believes in enforcement of the law.

Judge Frazier is a sportsman himself and he realizes the irreparable damage being done by the lawless element. Something has got to be done, and something will be done. As soon as certain judges let this soak through their heads, the better off it may be for them.

Exchange Club Gains In Bond-Bowling Sales

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Members of the Exchange Club spent the Saturday afternoon off by doing a big job. Lorenzo Jones and his cohorts went out and sold $12,850 worth of bonds to boost their total in The Constitution sponsored Bond-Bowling tournament to $516,125 worth of Axis discouragers.

The Exchange Clubbers still are far behind the Kiwanis total of $1,937,525 but they are out to close the gap in the three weeks the meet still has to run.

Total sales to date in the tourney, which hopes to promote the sale of $10,000,000 in bonds, is $2,912,100, according to John Bick, with prospects that the $3,000,000 mark will be attained Monday.

It was reported in Sunday's paper that Loew's Grand purchased a $100,000 bond, credited to the Exchange Club, through Manager Boyd Frye. The actual purchase was for $200,000, however, it was announced by Lorenzo Jones, dynamic Exchange Club pace setter.

Loew's made half the purchase through Citizens & Southern and the other through the First National Bank.

The Exchanges sold a $3,000 bond to Allen Ford, president of the Allen Ford Insurance Agency, and one for the same amount to Louis Montag, Byck's Shoe store bought a $2,500 bond.

Other sales Saturday included the following: Mrs. Jane Montag, $1,000; Louis Montag Jr., $1,000; James Montag, $500; Tony Montag, $500; E. Cutter Doves, $100; Mrs. Lucille Nichols, $500; Julius J. Barber, $750.

Gillenwater Sold To Brooklyn Club NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(P)—The New Orleans Pelicans announced today the outright sale of outfielder Carden Gillenwater to Brooklyn. He will report immediately.

Gillenwater is the second Pelican to graduate to Brooklyn since the close of the Southern Association season. Infielder Bill Hart already has joined the Dodgers.

Atlanta Ordnance Wins National Amateur Title

Ayers Pitches Second Victory In Two Days

Detroit Cops First, 14-3; Atlantans Take Clincher Tilt, 4-1.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 19.—(P)—The soldier team from the Atlanta (Ga.) Army Ordnance Depot tilted the National Amateur Baseball Federation crown from the Detroit Auto Club's defending champions today, winning the second game of a double-header 4 to 1 after absorbing a 14 to 3 beating in the opener.

The Atlanta Federation touring winners had copped the series in inaugural 5 to 0 yesterday when big Bill Ayers delivered a two-hitter. Ayers went to the mound again today and scattered seven burling for the nightcap win.

Hill did the Detroit hurling in the deciding game and blanked the Soldiers until the seventh when two singles, a base on balls and a sacrifice produced two runs. A pair of two-baggers and an error accounted for the other two tallies in the eighth.

Detroit threatened in the ninth, manufacturing its lone run and then jamming the bases, but Ayers fanned Relief Hurler Tony Bukovich to end the tournament which opened nine days ago with a total of 17 tries.

Bukovich turned in a five-hitter in the opener while his team pounded George Miller and Biren Hayes for 15 safeties. Detroit collected three runs in the fourth and repeated the performance in the seventh.

Lady Louise, eight-year-old mare owned by Wil-Fair Farms, of Decatur, Ga., was almost as perfect in form in winning second position. She was piloted by Eddie Barham, veteran saddle master.

Attracting almost equal attention from spectators was the $1,000 three-gaited grand championship, won by America Beautiful, eight-year-old chestnut mare owned by Fair City Farm.

Nellie Pidgeon, owned by Wil-Fair Farms, with Eddie Barham up, was second, and Victory Star, owned by the Morris Stables, of South Bend, Ind., was third. Charlie Dunn was in the saddle.

Nelson Decisions Craig Wood, 15-Up

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 19.—(P)—Touring his home Inverness course in championship form, Professional Byron Nelson today routed Craig Wood, duration National Open champion, from Mammoth Neck, N. Y., 15 up in their 72-hole challenge golf match.

Nelson, former U. S. Open and P. G. A. king, never trailed in the two-day affair. He was seven up at the end of 36 holes yesterday and boosted his margin to 11 up at the end of 54 holes today.

Nelson's victory was worth $2,500, which was posted by the Inverness Club members. It was the Toledo pro's second win over Wood, having beaten the blond stylist for the National Open crown in a playoff at Philadelphia in 1939.

Pebs Sell Hancock To Chisox Team

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 19.—(P)—The Chicago White Sox, which already have purchased two members of the 1943 Little Rock Travelers, acquired a third yesterday, Shortstop Freddie Hancock, in a player deal.

Traveler Business Manager Ray Winder announced tonight that the White Sox would send several unnamed players to Little Rock in exchange for Hancock, who batted slightly over .300 during the past season.

Hancock was inducted into the Army Air Corps recently, but he said this would not affect the deal. Several days ago the Travelers sold Pitcher Ed Lopat and Second Baseman LeRoy Schalk to the Sox.

Eight Softball Teams Remain in National Meet

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—(P)—Fifteen teams were eliminated from the Amateur Softball Association "World Series" today, leaving only eight of the starting field of 30 teams in two divisions to battle for places in tomorrow night's championship finals.

The New Orleans Jax, women's champions, gained their third successive victory, and Phoenix, Ariz., likewise was undefeated.

U. S. Bomber Output Wins British Praise

Peter Masefield editor of the British magazine "The Aeroplane," and well-known authority on aviation and air warfare for the London Sunday Times, is in this country to confer with U. S. aviation experts and to observe generally the aviation picture here.

By PETER MASEFIELD.

SANTA MONICA, Cal.—(NANA)—During the first week of an extensive tour of the United States aircraft industry, which I am privileged to make through the courtesy of the United States Army Air Forces, I have already seen much of interest and a great deal of real encouragement, which is all the more accentuated when one looks back to the dark days of 1940 and 1941.

Year-Old Barrow County Girl Boasts 7 Doting Grandmothers

By JOE DAVIS.
If it's true grandmothers are prone to humor their grandchildren to the point of "spoiling" them, little Linda Louise, year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cooper, of near Winder, Ga., could well be a very much spoiled child.
Linda Louise has it over most other children. She boasts seven grandmothers, all of them very much in love with her. In fact, they make no secret of it—they regard her as the apple of their eyes.
The grandmothers range from Great-Grandmother M. S. Sallie Cooper, of nearby Statham, whose 95 years haven't yet rested heavily enough on her shoulders to prevent her from bouncing the little girl on her knees, to the youngest of the septet, paternal grandmother Mrs. Gertrude Cook, of Winder, 43, also of Statham. Their combined ages total 480 years.
And, while the parents of the child can't see that she's spoiled, the grannies don't mind a bit acknowledging they have been liberal in bestowing their favors on the kiddie.
"I expect maybe we have spoiled her just a little bit, but my grandmothers do that, but then she's such a sweet child," said Maternal Grandmother Mrs. Gertrude Cook, of Winder, as she unraveled the relationships of the child and the older women for The Constitution.
"Yes," she added, "Linda Louise is at my house right now and you can bet she's having the time of her life."
The grandmothers, their relationship, ages and residences are: Mrs. Sallie Cooper, great-grandmother, 95, of Statham; Mrs. Naomi Ross, great-grandmother, 78, of Statham; Mrs. Adeline Cook, great-grandmother, 76, of Winder; Mrs. Dora Evans, great-grandmother, 71, of Statham; Mrs. Andrew Cooper, great-grandmother, 69, of Statham; Mrs. Gertrude Cook, grandmother, 43, of Winder, and Mrs. Annie Belle Cooper, grandmother, 43, of Statham.
The grandmothers represent three generations, Linda, bright-eyed in her just a little more than one year of life, represents the fifth generation in her family. All live close enough to visit frequently.
Rules the Roost.
The child is daughter of Douglas and Ouida Cook Cooper—both about 28 years old—and she rules the roost at their farm home as she does at the grandparents' homes when she visits.
Incidentally, the tip on this story was given The Constitution by another "great" relative who finds Linda one of her favorites—Mrs. Jimmie Hunter, of Winder, a great-aunt of the child.

Gulf Hurricane Hits Louisiana; Winds Subside

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 19.—(P)—The Gulf hurricane which milled around off the Texas coast for two days moved inward over south Louisiana in the Lafayette-Lake Charles area tonight, but with a diminished force which allowed the United States Weather Bureau here to order all warnings down in the Gulf district.
The bureau's 9:30 (P. C. W.) advisory added:
"High tides in southeastern and south-central Louisiana will fall slowly tonight and Monday. No further advisories will be issued."

Decatur Hero's Medal Given To His Mother

The Air Medal and Oak Leaf Cluster, awarded Staff Sergeant William H. Forrester, of Decatur, now a prisoner of war in Nazi-controlled Europe, was presented to his mother, Mrs. Dora Ella Forrester, of Decatur, yesterday, in ceremonies at the home of the sergeant's sister, Mrs. C. T. Sweetman, of 2050 Delano drive.

Lieutenant Colonel Francis D. Shoemaker, commanding officer at Atlanta Army Air Base and Major Robert B. Parker, air base executive officer, made the presentation. The medal was won by the 35-year-old former automobile tire salesman for extraordinary achievement while serving as tail gunner on a bomber mission over continental Europe, October 9, 1942. In that action he destroyed a German Focke-Wulf plane. The citation said in part "the courage, coolness and skill displayed on this occasion reflects highest credit on this soldier and the armed forces of the United States."

The cluster was awarded for "exceptionally meritorious achievement while serving as tail gunner on a bomber on five aerial combat missions over occupied Europe."

Sergeant Forrester was captured by enemy forces after he and fellow crew members had bailed out of a crippled plane while over enemy territory. His family here has received several messages from him since his capture. Two other brothers also are in the service. They are Corporal James L. Forrester, in Iraq, and Staff Sergeant Weyman R. Forrester, stationed at Blytheville, Arkansas.

WIDOW LAUNCHES SHIP

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The wife of a merchant seaman who lost his life when his vessel went down as the result of enemy action, christened a 10,000-ton cargo ship launched by the Gulf Shipbuilding Corporation today. Sponsoring the S. S. Antinous was Mrs. R. S. Hendry, of Mobile.

Army Airmen Return Favor To AWVS Here

By MARIE SMITH.

The AWVS Motor Corps started helping the Southeastern Procurement District of the Army Air Forces Material Command last July when district headquarters were established here, by chauffeur for the officers, and now the officers of the Material Command are helping the women of the AWVS reach their quota in the Third War Loan by purchase of bonds through the Motor Corps. Colonel R. W. Propst, district supervisor, was the first purchaser of bonds from the uniformed drivers of the American Women's Volunteer Services, but soon thereafter, other officers and civilian workers at the district headquarters placed their order for bonds with the ex-chauffeurs.

Thousand Men.

After buying his bonds, Colonel Propst said yesterday that organization of the district headquarters of the Air Forces Material Command in Atlanta is now almost complete with more than one thousand officers and civilians working at headquarters and in the field. Headquarters were established here to supervise and expedite the manufacture of war materials for the Army Air Forces and co-operate with industrial management in increasing production in this area, according to Colonel Propst.

With offices at 86 Edgewood avenue, the command is divided into more than 20 sections which includes production engineering, contracts, internal security, procurement, industrial relations, experimental, inspection, accountability, and resources control sections.

More War Work to Dixie.

This newly activated branch of the air forces, which has district offices in six cities and national headquarters at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, is designed to bring more war work into the southeast by converting idle machinery into war production, the Colonel reported.

Material Command officials recently made a survey of all available facilities in the southeast for production of equipment for the air forces, and discovered that a number of plants in this area have equipment for making needed materials and efforts will be made to place contracts with these factories, he added.

The Atlanta office serves 10 states, including Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Virginia, West Virginia, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, North and South Carolina.

Navy Mothers Hold Anniversary Fete

Service personnel located in Atlanta enjoyed a celebration, held Saturday night at the Atlanta Woman's Club by Atlanta Navy Mothers' Club, on the event of the second anniversary of the club's organization.

Mrs. Gabrielle Cohn, commander of the mothers' organization, was in charge of ceremonies. A highlight was a cake cutting by Commander Harry F. Dobbs, executive officer of the Office of Naval Officer Procurement here.

WAVES were guests of honor, and other guests included women Marines, WACS, soldiers, sailors, Marines and other service members.

The club has devoted much of its time, since formation, to helping transient sailors meet transportation problems.

Don't envy anyone who picked up a splendid used car. Do as HE did. Find one exactly like it in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

RUPTURED?

Dobbs Wonder Truss

The truss that is different! It does not spread the rupture. It holds with a soft concave pad. No bulbs, belts or straps.

AMERICAN FIGHTERS

KILLED, MISSING, WOUNDED

What are you doing for Victory?

"I've got a wife, three children and an invalid mother to support, plus higher living cost, and with the income tax deductions I can't afford to buy any bonds."

"I just don't feel like cutting those tops out of tin cans . . . it's so much trouble and it takes too long."

"It's just too much trouble to save waste fats and besides the grease is so messy."

"Sure I'll get you some extra gasoline coupons and we'll make that trip we planned this weekend."

"Oh, that's all right, we won't bother about five ration points, you can bring them in any day."

"Do you know Jim, my brother? Well he is in the Fourth Bomber Squadron. They are in Italy now with the Fifth Army."

Yes, this is the kind of remarks you've heard spoken or maybe you've said practically the same thing. Now ask yourself would you like to swap places with one of those fellows who are killed, missing or wounded? The answer is NO, but brother, those fellows would like to swap places with you if they could . . . that is if they didn't cause you any inconvenience. Don't forget there are millions of other fighters who want to come back home also. They are not forgetting you. Think now of the war . . . those American fighters who are dead and those still alive . . . then ask yourself what am I doing for Victory?
